Heil Signature On Repeal Bill Ends Financial Help for WDA

'Little TVA' Deprived of $60,000

Yearly Fund

SCOPE LIMITED

Will Continue to Offer
Engineering Services To REA

Madison—(P)—The Republican state administration today repudiated former Governor LaFollette's Wisconsin Development Authority plan and withdrew its financial support when Governor Heil signed a bill repealing its appropriation.

The WDA repealer was introduced by Assemblyman Budlong (R) Marinette, and was passed by both houses of the legislature after it weathered a stormy course in which senate Progressives once staged an all-night filibuster against it.

The development authority was commonly known as a "Little TVA" for Wisconsin. It was organized as a quasi-public corporation, upon which the 1937 legislature conferred broad powers for a state power program. Its appropriation was $60,000 a year.

Utility Ownership Plan

The articles of incorporation contemplated a general plan for public ownership of utilities. The supreme court, in a test case, once ruled the state could not contribute financial support to such a venture under its constitution, but later held upon reconsideration, that the appropriation could be used by WDA for educational purposes only.

The authority has been acting as engineer and contact agency on the department of rural electrification. Its opponents claimed it was involved in politics—a charge denied by Progressives.

John Becker, general manager of WDA, announced this week it would continue to furnish engineering services to REA cooperatives.

Meanwhile, the assembly has before it a Republican bill to set up a rural electrification office within the department of agriculture and markets to provide services to co-operatives and to municipal and privately owned utilities. The bill is sponsored by Speaker Thompson, of Richland Center, Benson, Spooner, Cook, Unity, and Hammergren, Cochrane.

Army Opens Drive to Enlist Youths for Training as Pilots

Washington—(P)—The army launched an intensive nationwide recruiting campaign today for youths to train as pilots for the more than 3,000 additional warplanes congress has authorized.

Five groups of officers were named to visit colleges and universities to recruit prospective June graduates for army aviation training.

Youths from other sources will be enrolled in the meantime.

Approximately 4,000 flying cadets must be trained in government schools to provide a sufficient number of pilots for planes which will be ready for use two years hence.

Officials disclosed that the intensified training program embraces employment of about 15 commercial flying schools to provide primary schooling. The output of finished military fliers from Randolph and Kelly fields, Texas, will be more than doubled.

The recruits will be given three months primary training at these civilian schools, three months further training at Randolph field and a final three months polishing course at Kelly field.

Occupation of Ruthenia Is Over Half Completed

Satorajia Ujehy, Hungary—(At the Carpathian Frontier)—The Hungarian army, hauling heavy artillery through the snow and occasionally skirmishing with Ukrainian guardsmen, had completed well over half the occupation of Carpathian Ruthenia today.

Tens of thousands of Hungarian soldiers poured into the annexed region of former Czechoslovakia and pushed the Ukrainian guardsmen and remnants of the Czech army into the southeast corner of the province.

A SENSE OF HUMOR

A flood might carry away your house and all the furniture—a cyclone might blow the garage and car from here to Timbuctoo—your clothing might all be destroyed by fire—and your best girl friend might suddenly decide she liked someone else better. But if you have a sense of humor, you're practically invulnerable. It's a grand thing to be able to say "The jokes on me!" and punctuate it with a genuine, hearty laugh. You'll never have to apply your sense of humor to Post-Crescent Want Ads—they're right there with results... and rates are lower, too.

Funeral Rites for Michigan's Chief Set for Tomorrow

Body Lying in State
Today in Rotunda of Capitol

Lansing, Mich.—(P)—From all walks of life, Frank Fitzgerald's constituents came today to pay their friend a final tribute in the state capital where he carved out the greater part of his 22-year career in the public service.

They came with the solemn purpose of filing past the late governor's bier, prepared in the same capitol rotunda where—just short of eleven weeks ago—a band blared forth a cheerful accompaniment to the inauguration of Michigan's first chief executive to attain re-election after having once been defeated at the polls.

The body of the late governor lay in state in the capitol rotunda from 1 to 5 o'clock p. m. today. A sentry from the 119th Field Artillery of the Michigan National Guard was posted at each end of the bier. State police formed an honor guard.

Neighbors Pay Tribute

Tomorrow the town of 3,500 that was home to Fitzgerald all his life, Grand Lodge, will claim its most distinguished son. Again the body will lie in state at the Smith-Hood funeral home from noon to 3 o'clock p. m. the hour of the funeral, while neighbors who knew him best as "Frank," and never as "governor," pay their special tribute to a man who never missed a chance to boast that he was a "small-town guy."

The public will participate also in services to follow, conducted by the Rev. Edwin W. Bishop of Plymouth Congregational church, Lansing, which Governor Fitzgerald attended frequently. Then the cortege, escorted by the 119 Field Artillery regiment, will proceed to the cemetery a mile away.

After the body will be lowered into a grave near those of his parents, the late John Wesley and Carrie G. Foreman Fitzgerald.

A salute of 19 guns fired at one minute intervals will boom out as a bugler sounds taps.

Treasurer Reports He Was Robbed of $900

Durand, Wis.—(P)—Sheriff Victor Selene was told by Earl McRoberts, town of Eau Claire treasurer, that he had been held up and robbed yesterday of $900 in tax receipts by a pair of masked men who forced his car off the road after shooting at a fender.

The robbery, McRoberts said, occurred on County Trunk D while he was enroute to Durand with the tax collections.

McRoberts said he was overtaken by the two who were driving a small 1936 model car, whose license plates were covered with cloth. He was unable to describe the men, Sheriff Selene said.

After the shot was fired into his front fender, McRoberts was quoted, he stopped and the two took the currency, ignoring several checks. They then took his car keys and left him, McRoberts said.

Nobel Prize Winner Won't Head College

Columbus, Ohio—(P)—Harry C. Catton, chairman of the Ohio State university board of trustees, indicated today Dr. Arthur Compton of Chicago, Nobel prize winner, had decided he could not accept presidency of the university.

The board, meeting last Sunday, indicated no formal offer had been made to Compton, but that he was asked to consider the presidency.

A reply within 10 days was requested and if it were favorable, another special meeting was planned next week. Catton said today, "There will be no called meeting of the board."

Dr. George Rightmire retired as president last July 1 and since then Dr. William McPherson has been acting head of the school.

PLANS INQUIRY

Horticon, Wis.—(P)—District Attorney Clarence Traeger announced today a special prosecutor would be named to conduct a John Doe investigation of the Dodge county asylum and poor farm.

Robbers Attack Clerk With Knife and Rob Power Company Office of $200 at Weyauwega

Two men attacked John Wilke, 21, Weyauwega, in the branch office and sales store of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company at Weyauwega at 12:10 this afternoon and escaped after robbing the cash drawer of about $200 in cash.

During the assault Wilke was cut on the forehead by a knife wielded by one of the robbers. He was thrown into the basement of the store and locked in while the robbers rifled the cash drawer. Wilke was treated by a physician and several stitches were required to close the wound.

The clerk was preparing to lock the office when a man entered the building. He was described as about five feet and ten inches tall and between 32 and 35 years of age. He had been in the store Thursday to inquire about the purchase of a motor and returned this noon.

As Wilke stooped to get the serial number of the motor in the rear of the store the man struck him over the head with his fist. Wilke fought back when a second man entered and entered the fight. Wilke was overcome and thrown into the basement.

The robbers then broke the lock on the cash drawer and took the money. They did not touch the safe which also held $100, according to Ben Ragus, manager of the office. The safe was locked.

Wilke's cries for help attracted Darrell Thorson, who lives in an apartment above the office. Sheriff Duncan Campbell of Waupaca county was notified and an alarm was spread over the police radio station WAKE, Oshkosh.

One of the robbers wore a black hat and overcoat and the other a gray cap and blue mackinaw. It is believed they escaped in a black Pontiac sedan, model and license unknown.

Youth Confesses Slaying Woman

Admits 'About Fifty' Attacks Within Last Two Years

Chicago—(P)—Detective Sergeant Bernard Riley said Sam Hryciuk, 19, signed a written confession today of slaying an elderly woman and admitted "about fifty" attacks or attempted attacks on women in the last two years.

He confessed, Sergeant Riley said, that he attacked, robbed and strangled to death Mrs. Bertha De Meyer, 67, in her home Nov. 11.

Hryciuk was arrested Tuesday after an attack on a woman and was to have appeared in boys' court on a sex charge. Sergeant Riley said he "talked" this morning.

The boy was taken to Cook County hospital where, Riley said, he was identified by a widow as the man who assaulted her near her home Sept. 19. She now is recovering from automobile accident injuries.

Sergeant Riley added that another woman also identified Hryciuk as her attacker last June 1.

Benes Demands League Action to Aid Czechs

Geneva—(P)—Eduard Benes, former president of Czechoslovakia, demanded today that Article X of the league covenant be put into force on behalf of his dismembered homeland.

He cabled the demand to Joseph A. C. Avenol, secretary-general of the League of Nations.

Article X binds members of the league to respect and preserve the territorial integrity and political independence of all other members against territorial aggression.

It provides that in case of aggression, or threats or danger of aggression, the council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled.

Benes is giving a course of lectures at the University of Chicago.

Indian Guilty in Fatal Shooting

Convicted in U. S. Court
At Superior of Involuntary Manslaughter

Superior—(P)—Henry Sharlow, 23, Bad River reservation Indian, was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a federal court jury at noon today. Sharlow was accused of fatally shooting Peter Frost, another Indian, on Oct. 2.

Judge Patrick T. Stone delayed imposition of sentence until Monday. The court told the convicted Indian he "wanted the truth" and would give him until Monday to "think it over."

Sharlow was accused of killing Frost when the two became engaged in a scuffle over a shotgun at the home of Mrs. Jennie Sharlow in Odanah during a drinking party.

Another jury, after deliberating only a few minutes, found Frank Shelafoe, Odanah Indian, guilty of assaulting his wife Avg. L. Shelafoe was given a six-month suspended sentence in county jail and was placed on probation for two years. Shelafoe's wife had charged that her husband had slapped her and tied a "string" about her neck. Later she changed her story and said she had attempted to commit suicide.

Two men and a woman were sentenced by Judge Stone yesterday for selling liquor to Indians.

Disgruntled Client Believed Slayer of Chicago Engineer

Chicago—(P)—A disgruntled business client was suspected by police today of being the gunman who slew Robert H. Hall, 44, a heating engineer, in the doorway of the latter's home.

Hall named his assailant before he died last night. Several hours before he had been summoned to his front door by the gunman's knock. The slayer shot Hall three times without warning.

The gunman first asked for Hall at the home of Carl Olson. He was told Hall lived next door.

Mrs. Hall and her daughter, Roberta, 18, a University of Illinois freshman, heard the shooting. Mrs. Hall told police investigators her husband had trouble with a customer who was dissatisfied with a heater and had threatened Hall's life.

The child's father, Tony Trinka, 26, of New Butler, fled from the scene of the shooting and later was found dead in his automobile along a Waukesha county highway. A revolver lay in his lap. The coroner said he had committed suicide.

August Basken, in whose town of Saukville home the shooting took place, was reported in a serious condition at the Sheboygan hospital. He was wounded three times.

Martin Fromm, Waukesha county coroner, said Trinka left a note stating his wife had told him their boy always would be crippled, that the child would be better off dead, and that "this should be a lesson to fathers-in-law who meddle in family affairs."

Trinka was Basken's son-in-law. Sheriff Ben Runkel of Saukville county said Trinka and his wife had had marital trouble and that Mrs. Trinka had come to her father's home with her baby. Trinka went to the Basken home early today and forced an entrance. Runkel said.

"Basken was shot three times with a .32 caliber revolver," Runkel said.

The assailant then left Basken's bedroom and went downstairs, apparently in search of Mrs. Trinka. He couldn't find her. Then he shot Tony, who was two years old today. The baby was wounded in the chest and just below the ribs.

Sheriff Runkel said he learned that after shooting the child, Trinka shouted: "Now I'll go upstairs and get the rest of them." Mrs. Trinka, 23, her sister Dorothy, 19, and her mother, Mrs. Basken, had been sleeping upstairs.

As Trinka started up the stairs, the sheriff related, Edwin Kussart, 23, employed by the Baskens, grabbed Trinka's right hand, knocked him downstairs after a struggle, and drove him from the house.

Berlin Plans To Repudiate Protest Notes

Official Declares Action
Ending Czech Nation
'Done Legally'

SEIZURE ASSAILED

Von Neurath Is Named
Reichs - Protector of Bohemia-Moravia

Berlin—(P)—The German foreign office spokesman declared today Germany would meet with "sharp repudiation" British and French notes denouncing the absorption of Czechoslovakia as illegal.

With Adolf Hitler on his way home from Vienna and the pace of his drang nach osten—march to the east—quicken at the threshold of Rumanian oil and wheat fields, Berlin officialdom stood its ground and declared that seizure of the Czechoslovak republic was "done legally."

Meanwhile, Hitler put Germany's authority over her new Bohemian-Moravian protectorate into the skilled diplomatic hands of Baron Konstantin von Neurath today while officials indicated they attached primary importance to United States and British official condemnation of the seizure of Czechoslovakia.

Von Neurath, president of the Nazi secret cabinet council and former foreign minister, was named reichs-protector of the 7,000,000 inhabitants of Bohemia-Moravia before Hitler left Vienna for home after a three-day tour of his new realm.

Nazi spokesmen in Berlin branded as "arrant nonsense" foreign reports that Hitler had put Hungary and Rumania next on his list for subjugation of his march to the east.

Speaking of the condemnations of Germany's course by acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, and Prime Minister Chamberlain, an official spokesman in Berlin said that "every syllable must be weighed" before any official reply is made.

See "False Ideas"

Semi-official comment issued later on Chamberlain's Birmingham speech, in which the prime minister condemned Germany's "wantonly" absorption of Czechoslovakia, said his words lacked objectivity.

This comment declared such statements from statesmen of western powers gave the small nations of southeast Europe false ideas of the roles they could play after the Munich accord extended German power to the southeast.

Madison Man Chosen President of State Engineering Society

Milwaukee—(P)—C. A. Wilson of Madison was elected president of the Engineering Society of Wisconsin at the concluding business session of its general engineering conference yesterday.

Wilson, a structural engineer in the state architect's office, was named to succeed C. A. Wiepking, Milwaukee. James L. Ferebee, chief engineer of the Milwaukee sewerage commission, succeeded Wilson as vice president.

The society's committee on sanitary engineering reported on the effect of fluorinated drinking water on the teeth, resulting in a condition known as "mottled teeth" appearing in young people. It was reported particularly prevalent in communities whose water supply contains an excess of two to three parts of fluorine per million parts of water.

The report said a survey of 260 public water sources in Wisconsin showed only 20 containing an excess of one part of fluorine. The problem, the report stated, exists mainly in the Fox River valley between Lake Winnebago and Green Bay, where geologists have detected presence of fluorine in limestone and sandstone formations.

Wounds Father-in-Law, Kills 2-Year-Old Son, Then Shoots Self to Death in Automobile

Fort Washington, Wis.—(P)—A two-year-old Tony Trinka, Jr., died in a Sheboygan hospital today, a few hours after he and his grandfather were shot, the sheriff said, by his father.

The child's father, Tony Trinka, 26, of New Butler, fled from the scene of the shooting and later was found dead in his automobile along a Waukesha county highway. A revolver lay in his lap. The coroner said he had committed suicide.

U. S. Boosts Duties On Reich Imports; Notes Hit at 'Grab'

Daladier Seeks to Call Specialists Into Service

WINS IN TWO VOTES

France and Britain
Charge Munich Pact
Repudiated

London—(P)—The British cabinet tonight considered a new "stard firm" policy in the light of Germany's absorption of Czechoslovakia, with the danger of a Nazi thrust at Rumania believed to be the chief subject of discussion.

The emergency session, for which Prime Minister Chamberlain hastened back from Birmingham, lasted two hours and 25 minutes.

It was the first Saturday session of the cabinet since the September crisis which led to the first dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

No immediate statement was issued, but it was understood the cabinet studied the organization of a European balance of power against Adolf Hitler's new imperialism.

Paris—(P)—Members of parliament said tonight that Premier Daladier would ask an emergency cabinet session tomorrow to approve decrees calling specialists from a number of military service classes into France's armed forces.

Deputies said the cabinet would be asked to approve this and other military measures in view of the situation arising from Adolf Hitler's absorption of Czechoslovakia, which France formally condemned in joint action with Britain today.

The specialists to be called would include such men as master mechanics, electricians and others specialized in civilian trades.

In the chamber of deputies the premier won his second vote of confidence of the day.

The chamber rejected an opposition motion that he be refused the sweeping decree powers he had asked to match the arming pace of the dictator-ruled countries. The unofficial count was 316 to 262.

Assured Of Powers

This vote virtually assured Daladier of receiving his dictatorial powers before tomorrow night.

The main vote on the government's bill conferring the powers has yet to be taken. Earlier today the chamber gave the premier a first vote of confidence, 334 to 258, rejecting an opposition motion that the house refuse to discuss the bill.

Earlier France summoned her ambassador to Berlin back to

Farmhand Is Held In Shooting Case

Woman Wounded When She Refuses Money
To Employe

Whitehall, Wis.—(P)—Mrs. Mathilda Utter, about 50, was shot in the breast late yesterday when she refused money to one of her farmhands.

District Attorney C. E. Fugina arrested John Olson, known as an Olson, at the Utter home a short time after Mrs. Utter had tottered into the home of a neighbor, a quarter of a mile away.

Olson, employed by Mrs. Utter since last June, was detained in the county jail without charge.

Fugina said he was informed Olson left the farm yesterday, and demanded money when he returned. Mrs. Utter refused, whereupon Olson seized a rifle and shot her. Fugina said. As she lay on the floor, Mrs. Utter asked Olson to get the keys to her car. Olson declined and told her to "keep still and get out or I'll shoot again."

The district attorney said Mrs. Utter then started to walk to a neighboring farm.

Mrs. Utter was reported in fair condition today.

The Utter farm is in the town of Albion, Trempealeau county.

Fond du Lac Youth Confesses Killing

Fond du Lac—(P)—Chief of Police James Filgen announced today that Elsworth E. Medberry, 22-year-old Fond du Lac youth, had admitted killing a man near Akron, Colo., a week ago.

The chief said he arrested the youth at the request of Colorado authorities, and that Medberry had waived extradition on a first degree murder warrant. He said the youth did not know the name of the man he had killed.

No Added WPA Jobs Available in State

Madison—(P)—Philip D. Flanner, state WPA administrator, said today he had received orders to cease hiring any new applicants for WPA jobs.

Flanner said replacements had been going on to maintain Wisconsin's quota but that in the future the only ones who can be added to the rolls are those who left to accept private employment since last June and lost their jobs through no fault of their own.

Rumanian King And His Council Consider Threat

Believe Nazis Try to Bring County Under Economic Direction

Paris—(P)—France and Britain, sources close to the foreign office said tonight, are trying to persuade Soviet Russia to join them in aiding Rumania to resist the economic pressure of the expanding German state.

These sources said King Carol had informed Paris and London he was willing to resist Adolf Hitler's drive to the east if France and Britain could provide markets for Rumania's exports.

Bucharest—(P)—Rumania, confronted with Germany's new eastward thrust and comprehensive Nazi economic proposals, is giving urgent consideration to her dangerous position.

King Carol, meeting with the crown council and general staff in a lengthy session during the night, discussed Rumania's relations with Germany from both trade and military angles.

Germany is negotiating for more of Rumania's trade but Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu declared Nazi economic proposals did not constitute an ultimatum.

In London, a spokesman of the Rumanian legation said his government had received and rejected sweeping demands by Germany for complete economic cooperation as the price of guarantees of Rumania's territorial integrity.

The demands were described as being virtually of ultimatum character.

(German spokesmen in Berlin said Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat, Nazi negotiator, still was in Bucharest.)

Berlin—(P)—Informed circles had no doubts today that Germany was trying to bring Rumania under Nazi economic direction although German officials denied flatly that demands were being made for an economic mission in Bucharest.

It was admitted that Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat, one of the keenest negotiators of Field Marshal Goering's four-year economic self-sufficiency plan, was in Bucharest seeking a new economic treaty.

It was understood, moreover, that Goering's envoy was trying to bring Rumania so completely into the German economic orbit that the rich Balkan country would form virtually part of the expanding reich's "lebensraum"—space for existence.

An official announcement said the Bucharest negotiations were continuing their normal course and that all reports going beyond this fact were to be regarded as an attempt to create a condition of tension.

Michigan Couple Dead In Auto-Train Crash

Ononagon, Mich.—(P)—Leo Charles Felner, 28, and Mrs. Jean H. Watson, 34, both of Ononagon, died in a hospital here today of injuries suffered when their automobile struck the Milwaukee road's northbound Chippewa at a crossing near Ononagon last night.

County authorities expressed the opinion the car struck the last coach of the train, since trainmen said they were not aware an accident had occurred until notified of it later. The driver of a truck found the injured couple half an hour after the train had passed.

Mrs. Watson was employed as Ononagon county nurse. Felner worked in a paper mill.

Faces Charge of Using U. S. Mails to Defraud

Milwaukee—(P)—Jennings B. Momen, president of Associated Adjusters, Inc., was arrested today on a warrant charging use of the mails to defraud.

Carl R. Becker, assistant United States attorney, said Momen's firm placed advertisements in newspapers throughout the nation offering to train adjusters for finance and insurance companies.

"More than 20,000 persons over the nation answered these ads," Becker said. "Only a few obtained any work through the company. We have received several thousand complaints."

25 Per Cent Counter- vailing Levies to Be Imposed

MUM ON DETAILS

Action Is Taken With Knowledge of State Department

Washington—(P)—The treasury department announced today the imposition of countervailing duties on dutiable German imports.

This action, a treasury department official said, was taken with the knowledge of the state department.

The treasury official refused to comment when asked whether the action related to Germany's seizure of Czechoslovakian provinces.

The immediate effect of the action, it was stated, is to impose a 25 per cent countervailing duty in addition to regular duties.

The treasury official asserted that the action "speaks for itself."

The treasury's decision, it was stated, affects hundreds of products.

Amount Not Listed

Leading German imports to this country have been chemicals, toys, medicine, paper and china.

In 1938, imports from Germany totaled $64,537,000. In 1937 imports from Germany totaled $92,468,000.

The treasury official said the department could not immediately state the amount of dutiable goods which would be affected.

It was said, however, that a "substantial part" of Germany's total exports to the United States were dutiable under this country's laws.

The treasury made public a decision of Attorney General Frank Murphy. Murphy's opinion said it

Labor Organizer Asks U. S. Probe of Strike Disorders

Demands Action in Telegram to Attorney General Murphy

Evansville, Ind. — (AP) — William Senter, of St. Louis, international organizer for the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Shop Workers of America, CIO affiliate, demanded in a telegram to United States Attorney General Frank Murphy today a federal grand jury investigation of the strike disorders in connection with the union's strike for recognition at the plant of Servel, Inc., refrigerator manufacturer, here.

"Striking employees of Servel, Inc., Senter's telegram said, 'have been shot by armed company police. Others have been slugged and beaten.'

Senter alleged "union officers have been arrested for the alleged acts of violence by the company," and claimed he had "evidence of violation of civil rights."

Freeed on $1,000 Bonds George Matthews, 25, and Miss Pearl Lindsey, 34, strikers, were freed on $1,000 assault and battery bonds yesterday following violence which resulted in the wounding of one person and the injury of at least two others Thursday night.

Ten of those arrested in connection with the violence, including Art Melon, 38, the union's Evansville organizer, were released last night.

Circuit Judge John W. Spencer, Jr., said today he had ordered the grand jury to meet Monday to investigate the strike.

Affidavits against Matthews and Miss Lindsey were filed by Mrs. Ellen Senter, 24, non-striking worker, who told Police Captain William Nordhaus she was beaten by "10 or 15 men and women" near the Servel plant Thursday night.

W. E. Baker, Servel vice president, said only "seven or eight percent" of the 3,400 employees had not returned to work since the strike was called Wednesday morning.

Melton said 700 workers were idle.

Milk Price Cuts Are Considered

Hearings are Scheduled For Racine, Kenosha This Month

Madison — (AP) — Retail milk price reductions in the Racine, Kenosha, Madison, Beloit and Janesville milksheds were discussed today as the result of a 2 cents a quart cut in the Milwaukee area.

The state department of agriculture and markets, which enforces the stabilization law, yesterday lowered the Milwaukee price from 12 to 10 cents a quart, with a reduction in Racine from $2.71 to $2.10 a hundred pounds.

The order, issued after agreement between producers and dealer representatives, was intended to remedy market conditions in which sales of fluid milk have diminished substantially.

Hearings on price reductions have been scheduled for Racine on March 27 and Kenosha, March 28. These and the Janesville market are now charging 12 cents a quart, while Beloit and Madison get 11 cents.

Department officials said they expected a general reaction from the Milwaukee order although no definite arrangements have been made for hearings outside of Racine and Kenosha. They expressed less concern over the Eau Claire and Fox River valley markets where the retail price is now 10 cents.

Any reductions in retail prices would undoubtedly be accompanied by a lowering of the price to producers, they said.

Sanitary Sewer Job Ready for Operation

Congressman Joshua L. Johns today notified Mayor Goodland that a $24,028 WPA sewer project in the town of Harrison is eligible for operation. The project was approved March 10 by President Roosevelt, Johns wrote.

Miss Estelle J. Green, county nurse, explained a poster contest that is to be started in the high schools to create interest in the tuberculosis program. Cash prizes are to be awarded the most original entries.

Lester M. Emmert, superintendent of schools at Waupaca, explained the program carried on by the schools in that city for the past

James Roosevelt Is Unconcerned About Anti-Trust Action

Washington — (AP) — James Roosevelt, son of the president, apparently was unperturbed today at being named defendant in a justice department anti-trust suit against the motion picture industry.

At Hollywood, where "Jimmy" is a board member of United Artists, his only comment was:

"I believe I have been named in the place of James Muelvey whose place I took on the United Artists board."

The name of the president's son and former secretary was mentioned by the justice department yesterday as substitute for Muelvey along with several other new motion picture company officials whose employers were named in a monopoly suit filed several months ago in the federal southern district of New York. The suit charged several major producers with controlling the distribution and exhibition of Class A pictures in violation of federal antitrust laws.

Ask Benefits for Indians Killed or Injured at Work

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington — Congressman Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, has introduced a bill at the request of delegates of the Menominee tribe, granting compensation to members of the tribe injured or killed in their work, on the basis of a like compensation paid to government employees.

The payments will be made, however, from the revenues of the tribe, and will be retroactive as far back as Sept. 7, 1916, when the government employees' compensation act was enacted.

Compensation will be paid to all persons employed on the Menominee reservation except private contractors and their employees, according to the bill.

Al Dodge, James Frechette and Gordon Dickie, who comprise the delegation, are also drawing up an old-age assistance bill which they will present to Congressman Murray in the near future.

If the compensation act were passed, the countless private claims of the tribe against the government might be withdrawn, the delegation hints.

Tribal claims against the government, however, are flourishing. The delegation has announced a contract with the law firm of Dwight, Harris, Kogel and Caskey of New York city, to represent the tribe in litigation of approximately $100,000 before the court of claims, on charges of maladministration of tribal business in the past.

The tribe has previously employed the New York lawyers as legal counsel, according to the delegation.

Jury Frees Maid Of Murder Charge

Servant Girl Collapses as Not Guilty Verdict Is Read

Hillsville, Pa. — (AP) — Acquitted of a charge of murder, comely Angelina Maravola took up again today the household duties interrupted when a pistol in her hand shattered her romance and killed 29-year-old Michael Rich, Jr., here last Feb. 3.

The 22-year-old girl who served as housemaid in the Rich home collapsed in the arms of a jail matron as the verdict was read and sobbed, "I'm so happy, so happy." The jury of seven men and five women deliberated nearly nine hours.

Angelina's father, Michael, and her brother, John, rushed her from the courtroom to nearby New Castle to the modest Maravola cottage where they said Angelina would care for her mother, who is ill.

The dark-eyed servant girl testified she and the son of her well-to-do employer in this western Pennsylvania village had quarreled because young Rich refused to keep a promise of marriage. She said she shot him four times after he struck and threatened her. The commonwealth charged she shot him in the back as he stood telephoning.

They gave their names as Kay Johnson, Ruth Allen, Betty Moore, Vivian Larson, Irene Brickley and Joan Mazze. After pleading guilty they were fined $100 and costs each and were advised to leave the county with a warning that more stringent measures otherwise would be taken.

Two men were charged with being patrons of the disorderly house and were fined $15 and costs each by Justice of the Peace Oscar Schab. Justice Schab was out of town and the docket record showing the names of the two men could not be obtained at his home today.

No Matter How You Slice It—$150,000,000 Request Is Old Issue of Work Relief or Dole

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY
Washington — (AP) — Work relief or the dole for the unemployed millions?

The president of congress comes once again to that some old question that plagued the nation in the dark days of 1932—and has remained to plague it ever since.

Dress them up, garnish them any way you will, but the hot words about relief and economy crowding out page one of your newspaper these days add up to just that issue. There's simply no way around it.

Thumb back fast through eight swift years of relief history in the United States and you'll see why. In 1932 congress avoided the issue temporarily by providing a quick $500,000,000 for the relief kitty in the various states, thus passing the buck to 48 other governments. The states by and large passed it on to the localities. The counties and cities made no bones about the choice. They picked the dole, because it was cheaper and simpler. And the dole it still is in most states, counties and cities, whether they call it general relief, direct relief, or any other name.

Two Relief Pools
In 1933 congress faced the question again. This time the nation had shown a dislike for the dole. Even though cities cling to it so money would go farther per unemployed citizen, it was not the preferred way. The national lawmakers, therefore, chose work relief, despite its higher cost, and confirmed the precedent in semi-permanent WPA two years later. In the federal government, it has been work relief ever since.

Gradually two pools of unemployed citizens formed at the bottom of the economic ladder. One was the work relief pool, sponsored by WPA. Into it went citizens conforming to an unemployed standard labelled "employable." The "employables" are cared for to the limit of federal funds at a cost varying around the $2,000,000,000 mark annually. Just now there are about 3,000,000 persons in that pool, with more than twice that many dependent on them.

In the other pool are the dolees. They include all the destitute who can't work, and the WPA waiting list of employables as well. Just now there are about 1,500,000 persons in this less desirable pool, with many more dependents.

The fellow on the dole gets an average of $24.68 a month, depending on the state or city he lives in. The fellow on relief receives an average monthly wage of $32.50. It costs little more than $25 a month to keep a man on the dole, at that rate. But it costs $75 a month (including wages and materials), to furnish a man with work relief. Therefore, the dole is the way of rigid economy; it makes a dollar go a long way. Work relief is the way of higher cost and greater satisfaction.

May Be Cut Some
As times get better, the population of those two pools may dwindle some, perhaps a few hundred thousand by June 30. But the actual number really doesn't alter the fundamentals.

If the president gets the $150,000,000 he has asked for to carry WPA to the end of the fiscal year on June 30, that will merely mean the federal pool will be kept just as full, proportionately, as it now is. There will be no change in the congressional policy to furnish work relief to employables.

But if congress does not vote the money, then people turned away by the federal government will simply drain back into the dole pool operated by the states, counties and cities. Intentionally or otherwise, congress will be leaning towards the dole.

That's why a mere $150,000,000 in these times of billion-dollar budgets is so important. It becomes a yardstick of economy at a time when the national debt is reaching toward the statutory limit. It becomes also the emblem of the principle of trying to give every unemployed worker a job.

Those are questions congressmen will be worrying about when they vote on that $150,000,000. For the issue is work relief versus the dole—spending versus economy.

Relief Costs of City are $6,046 For Last Month

Amount Is Increase Over January; Decrease From February 1938

Care of city relief clients in February amounted to $6,046.64, an increase of $310.73 over January but a decrease of $387.62 from February 1938. A total of 234 cases were listed for the month as against 219 in January and 228 in February of last year, according to a report compiled by the relief accounting department for F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director.

Payments to other counties for charges not residing in the city at present amounted to $501.23, bringing the total cost to the city to $6,547.87. The city also paid $1,317.28 for county charges and is reimbursed for this expenditure.

Provisions in February cost $2,186.04, a decrease of $31.54 from January; administration $901.68, a decrease of $43.32; shelter $972.68, an increase of $171.68; clothing $79.65, a decrease of $70.05; public utilities $17.77, a decrease of $9.67; fuel $974.34, an increase of $67.55; direct relief $60.15, an increase of $36.52; and direct relief paid in cash $85, an increase of $2.50.

Medical costs included drugs and equipment $72.84, a decrease of $130.20 from January; physicians $42.50, a decrease of $9.50; dental care $125, an increase of $55; hospitalization $309.90, an increase of $338.56; and burials $10.

Legion's Chief Raps Dictators

Chadwick Sees Germany's Action as Grabbing 'Economy of Nation'

Madison — (AP) — Characterizing Germany's dismemberment of Czechoslovakia as an action to "grab the economy of a helpless nation," Stephen F. Chadwick, national commander of the American Legion, criticized dictators and totalitarian governments in a speech here last night.

He spoke before 400 persons at a banquet commemorating the twentieth anniversary of the legion here. William Maas, executive secretary to Governor Heil, represented the state's chief executive.

Referring to the recent German-American Volksbund demonstration in New York, Chadwick said it and similar meetings must be recognized as "symptoms of diseases" in the life of the nation.

"If 20,000 persons meet in Madison Square Garden and put the Nazi flag next to the picture of George Washington, or if 20,000 want to parade with the uplifted, clenched fist, I am not afraid."

"But we must take cognizance of these as symptoms of diseases in the body politic. They may grow and threaten. We may not have made the world safe for democracy in 1917, but we made democracy safe for America and by a successful example here at home we may bring a spread of this philosophy."

"You can't drive that philosophy down the throats of nations by bayonets. It behooves us to preach and teach, and we must be prepared to meet and defeat aggressor nations before they ever come to America to threaten our liberties."

Dairy Program Will Be Subject of Study

Pedestrian Safety Month Endorsed by Traffic Officers

Captain Charles Steidl of the county traffic squad today appealed to motorists and pedestrians to cooperate in observing "Pedestrian Safety Month" this month. To date this month the county's record of pedestrian traffic accidents is perfect, not one being reported in the county, excluding the cities.

March was named as "Pedestrian Safety Month" by the safety division of the state highway department and traffic officers throughout the state are behind the movement to cut this particular type of accident during the period.

Steidl said that the safety efforts of motorists should not be confined alone to cutting accidents involving pedestrians, but every type of traffic accident.

Records of the Post-Crescent show that while there were fewer accidents in the county to date this year than for the same period last year, more persons were injured.

Says Single Tax Would be No Aid To Corporations

Senator Believes Business Would Rather Have Present Levies

Washington — (AP) — Senator Schwartz (D-Wyo.) predicted today that demands for revision of federal taxes on corporations would disappear "just as soon as business sees the figures."

The Wyoming senator, an administration supporter and a recent White House visitor, expressed the opinion that the single corporation income tax which would be necessary to maintain government revenue, in event other levies were repealed, would have to be so high that business would prefer existing taxes.

He added that most demands for revision centered on removal of the undistributed profits tax, capital stock and excess profits levies. These have been criticized as business deterrents.

Revision advocates have suggested as a substitute a single tax on corporation income.

"If this were done it probably would be necessary to increase taxes on big corporations up as high as 30 per cent," Schwartz said. "Taxes on smaller corporations might have to be raised to 18 or 20 per cent."

President Roosevelt has conditioned his approval of any corporate tax revision upon maintenance of revenue at existing levels.

Work by Mydans, Hardy On Display at College Library

Two photographic exhibits, one at the Lawrence college library and the other in the Neville public museum at Green Bay, are the leading events in the realm of art and photography at present in the city and vicinity.

Works by Rex Hardy and Carl Mydans, members of the Life magazine staff, are now on exhibit at the Lawrence library and will remain there until Friday, March 31. The library is not open Sunday, but the public may view the prints during week days and early in the evening. The Appleton Camera club is the sponsor.

One of Mydans' pictures is shown on this same page, a magnificent study of anti-aircraft bombardments. He is at present covering with his camera the building of the mid-town tunnel under East river in New York.

At the Green Bay museum, the third Annual Fox River Valley Photographic Salon is showing. Although generally considered a national show, there are quite a few prints from abroad. The Green Bay Camera club is sponsoring the exhibit.

About 90 photographers are represented. The show opens officially tomorrow afternoon and the museum will be open from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock. J. B. Koenig, of Green Bay, will give a talk at 2:30 on the exhibit, pointing out its highlights and reviewing some of the milestones in the history of photography.

Kendall is one of the judges for the show. Others are Paul Bell of Oshkosh and Gilbert Larson of Fond du Lac.

Troop Will Observe Its 20th Anniversary

Troop 2 of the Methodist church will celebrate the completion of 20 years of scouting activities next Friday evening at a dinner for troop leaders, members, and parents.

Mowry Smith, president of the valley council, will present a new charter to Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of the church, marking the end of the 20-year period.

H. H. Braun, scoutmaster of the troop, said today that a letter from Leigh Hooley, now teaching in Hawaii and the troop's first scoutmaster, will be read at the meeting and that Dr. G. W. Carlson, former scoutmaster, will be one of the speakers. A court of honor will climax the event.

Park Board Balance Is $12,890 March 1

The balance in the park board budget at the end of February was $12,890.25, according to a report filed in city hall yesterday. The board started out with $19,236 including a balance of $1,236.50 from last year's fund. Expenses this year included the retirement of bonds, $2,500; interest on bonds, $850; January expenses, $941; and February expenses, $2,054.78.

Three events which were held during the 1938 Inter-Club Olympics have been dropped and replaced with three new contests, Homer Gebhardt, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. which is sponsoring the 1-day event, said today.

Members of the city's service clubs will hold their annual athletic carnival at the "Y" March 31. The events that have been scratched are volleyball, relay race, and handball singles. Replacing them are badminton, basketball free throws, and Chinese checkers.

Solicit Funds to Promote Sale of Dairy Products

Contributions for $100,000 Campaign Based on Butterfat Production

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — More than 30,000,000 pounds of butterfat represented in 42 dairy plants in Wisconsin has already been pledged in the Wisconsin dairy industry's drive for a $100,000 national advertising fund, Lee I. Yorkson of Waupaca, of the Wisconsin Dairy Industries association, reported.

The fund is being raised by a 50 cents per 1,000 pounds voluntary assessment on butterfat production of Wisconsin dairy plants, or the equivalent of about 10 cents per cow annually. The 30,000,000 pounds already pledged represents about $15,000, Yorkson said.

He said that the Fox river valley area has not yet been covered by the committee's field solicitors, but that would be entered soon. Activities thus far have been confined to the western and central counties.

Need 50 Per cent Bryce S. Landt of Wisconsin Dells, association president, pointed out that nearly 15 per cent of the state's butterfat production is already enrolled. Before the advertising plan becomes effective, 50 per cent must be signed.

Landt announced the appointment of district representatives of the association, including the following: Paul Pratt, Wisconsin Rapids; Wood, Portage and Waupaca counties.

Harry Jack, Hortonville, Outagamie, Calumet and Manitowoc counties.

Paul Carver, Oshkosh, Winnebago, Fond du Lac and Green Lake counties.

Yorkson and a corps of three assistants are now traversing the state selling the industrial advertising idea to the Wisconsin dairymen.

Realtors Move to Ease Tax Load of Property Owner

Concerted Drive Is Underway to Induce Legislative Action

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — A concerted pressure drive to induce the state legislature to enact a law statutory limitation on real estate taxation in order to encourage home ownership was begun this week by building and loan associations and real estate men all over the state, it was learned today.

Promoters of the movement said that they will shortly introduce in both houses of the legislature a measure which would limit taxes on owner-occupied homes to $5 per $1,000 for the first $3,000 of valuation, and $15 per $1,000 above that figure. All other real estate would be limited to a rate of $15 per $1,000 of valuation, according to the plans made for the bill.

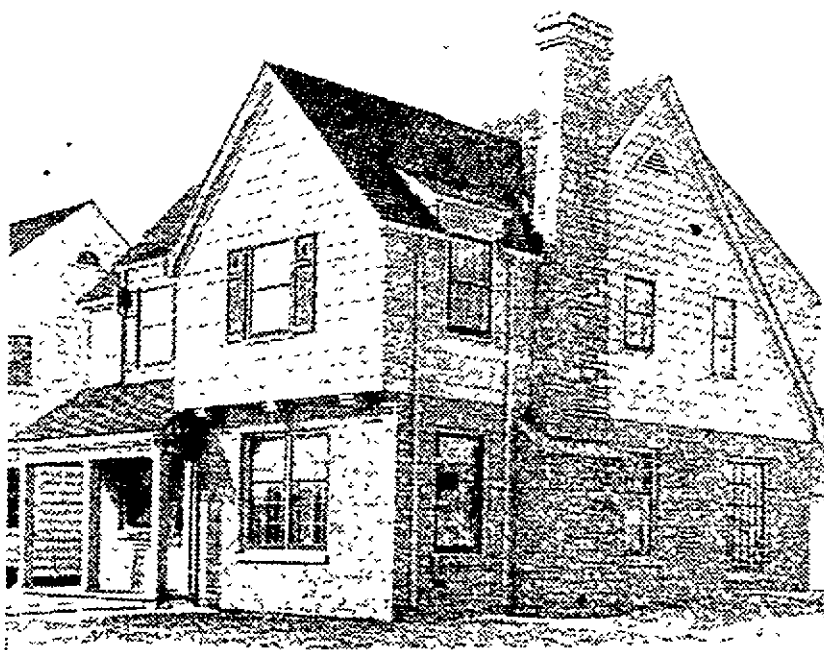

First question asked by legislators when the proposal was broached to them yesterday and today concerned the source of a new revenue which must be found to replace the tremendous amounts which would be lost upon such real property tax limitations. Some expressed the opinion that only a drastic sales or gross income levy would suffice. Real estate men, in letters to members, however, promised to show "at least three successful ways by which seventeen other states have found sources of revenue to give the imperative relief to real estate taxpayers."

One Fox river valley realtor wrote to his legislative representative that "something will have to be done to help our farmers as well as city folks in acquiring and retaining their homes and not lose them by the slow process of confiscation by way of the tax route."

There are no more cats in Kilbenny than in any other Irish town, nor do they fight more. The old yarn to the contrary arose out of the dissensions of the 17th century between the English and Irish sections of the town.

Changes in Monopoly Policy Will Tend to Help Business

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Far-reaching changes of policy in enforcement of the anti-trust laws are due to be announced soon. By all indications, these changes should be welcome to the business world.

In brief, the purpose is to use the anti-trust laws for constructive assistance to business operation, and if present hopes are realized, the result should do much toward stabilizing orderly activity.

Frank Murphy, attorney general, and Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust prosecutions, have the program well formulated and it is almost ready for announcement.

For years there has been little except a pretense of enforcing the anti-trust laws. It had to be pretense because liberal enforcement has been a practical impossibility. The government could do little more, under a liberal prosecution policy, than to select a horrendous example occasionally and stage a public flogging, while other industries went ahead with price and production control and elimination of competition under varying degrees of disguise.

The glass bottle industry has rocked along for years in the grip of a tight little monopoly, as was shown in the recent testimony before the congressional monopoly committee, and nothing ever has been done about it. When the government recently undertook to exterminate the automobile-financing appendages of automobile manufacturers, it discovered that these company-owned financing organizations protected the automobile buyer from small-loan sharks and that were they wiped out without permitting some sponsored substitute arrangement, it would be simply throwing gravel into the mouths of unscrupulous racketeers.

In the new policy about to hatch, it is recognized that modern industrial conditions make rigid application of competitive standards impossible in many instances. The rule of reason must be applied to obtain constructive solutions in the true public interest.

Some combinations in the past, in many such instances these combinations have destroyed competition, rival businesses have closed, and imposition of penalties would not recreate competition.

Would Try To Work Out Fairest Program The intention of the department of justice is to file suit and then lay such situations as above indicated before various government agencies. A Chicago or Detroit milk situation would be taken to the department of agriculture. Secretary Hopkins is being urged to ask for creation of a bureau of industrial economics in the commerce department. Many situations would go to such a bureau. The industry concerned and government experts would work out—without regard to the anti-trust laws—what seemed to them the fairest and most practicable program of trade practices. Call it a code if you prefer, because the idea is to do one of the things that NRA attempted. This plan or program or code would clear through the federal trade commission, acting as a kind of master for the court.

Then, when in final shape, the draft agreement would be presented in court to be embodied in a consent decree. Or if of a particularly broad character not falling within the outside boundaries of the anti-trust laws, it would go to congress for legislation.

To those who have wrestled with the problems of prosecution, this procedure seems the only workable method of dealing with the infinitely complicated practices of modern business in a way to protect the public interest and the interest of the businessmen themselves, and at the same time avoid the destructive effects of trying to "pulverize" business through headlong "trust-busting."

Preparations to Start Monday for Better Home Show

Booths Will be Erected in Armory; Opening Wednesday Night

Erection of booths for the Better Housing and Home Show which opens Wednesday night in Armory G, will start Monday, the Knights of Pythias committee announced today.

About 46 booths, displaying and demonstrating the latest in building materials and supplies and home equipment, will be erected on the armory floor. The building will be attractively decorated for the event. The show, the fifth to be presented in the city by the Knights of Pythias, will be open Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings, Saturday and Sunday afternoons and evenings.

Providing an early glimpse at what 1939 has to offer for the home builder and remodeler and helping the building industry off to a good start, the Better Housing and Home Show is expected to attract upwards from 5,000 people.

Herman Hoen and Robert O. Schmidt are co-chairmen for the event. Other members are George Nolting, Elmer Root, Malcolm Fraser, Earl Miller, and Earl Ballard. Not only will those who attend the show see impressive building displays but they also will be given an opportunity to engage in games and to enjoy entertainment.

Past attendance is the basis of the forecast for more than 5,000 people at the 5-day show. When the home show was first held five years ago, 3,000 attended. Last year's crowd numbered 5,000.

procedure seems the only workable method of dealing with the infinitely complicated practices of modern business in a way to protect the public interest and the interest of the businessmen themselves, and at the same time avoid the destructive effects of trying to "pulverize" business through headlong "trust-busting."

Brews, Oils Will Clash in Playoff For League Title

Two Non-Circuit Games Will Precede Feature Tilt Sunday

Kaukauna—The Mellow Brews will meet the D-X Oils in the playoff for the city league second half title at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Two non-league attractions will precede the tilt, with Kaukauna Merchants, girls team, playing the Green Bay Independents at 1 o'clock and St. Mary's CYO clashing with St. Boniface of DePere at 2 o'clock. The CYO five was returned the winners in the Wrightston tourney last week.

If the Oils defeat the Brews city league play will be over for the year as the Oils won the first half championship. If the Brews win two teams will be necessary.

The high scoring Brew quintet, which has averaged more than 40 points a game throughout the year, topping off its attack with 84 points against the Pantry Lunch last week, will go into the battle a slight favorite. Charley Bloch at forward and Ed Bloch at center, the only two players on the league to score more than 100 points, give the Brews an advantage. Cliff Vanevenhoven at the other forward post and Ralph Wurdinger and Floyd Driessen at guard complete the starting lineup.

The Oils will have Art Koehne and Ed Elting at forward, D. Van Abel at center and George Hatchell and W. Van Abel at guards. Jim Lang and Chuck Arnold will see as much action as the starters, for the Oils have a well balanced club that substitutes frequently. The Brews have only five dependable, however, and the loss of a man on fouls may prove fatal. The Brews' only loss of the second half was to the Pulpmakers, 26 to 24, when three players fouled out.

Labor Says Farmers' Bill to Regulate Unions Upsets Years Of Progress in Labor Relations

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Although the Wisconsin legislature has been in session less than three months, there have already been more bitterness, more ugly overtones in debate, more passionate fighting than in any other session of the present generation. The principal cause has been the attempt to repeal, or modify, some of the labor laws which previous legislatures have enacted at the pressure of organized labor in Wisconsin.

More particularly, the cause is to be found in the attempt of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, an organization of uncertain strength but possessing much respect among legislators, to repeal the state labor relations law enacted by the 1937 legislature, and to write in its stead an "employment peace act."

The battle is now half over, presumably, for the lower house of the legislature has passed and sent to the senators the Council's labor bill. While the situation in the senate is less certain, close observers feel that the bill within two more weeks will be on Governor Heil's desk for signature. The first test vote, however, indicated that the battlelines are closely drawn.

Most curious fact about the bill is that it was brought in by farmers alarmed at the threat of labor unionists entering their economic realm, the dairy plants, cheese factories and cooperatives, and those who were resentful against certain sporadic labor incidents in the fields and dairy factories during the last year.

Core of the "employment peace act" is its intention to make organized labor as responsible as organized capital, or the employer, in labor disputes. The bill proposes to impose restrictions on the employer, but will add also restrictions on the employee in his union, restrictions which were lacking under the 1937 labor relations act which it replaces.

This, its sponsors claim, will make the labor law "fair to the three parties involved in labor disputes, the employer, the employee and the public."

Would Be Set-Back Labor replies, however, that many of the restrictions which the bill proposes to make are repulsive, that they merely forbid certain acts and policies which are already effectively forbidden under other laws, and particularly the criminal laws. Others of the restrictions, says the labor spokesmen, will "set labor back 30 years," will even abrogate some of the old common law protections, and rights which labor enjoyed before the arrival of the labor relations act.

The old law cites unfair labor practices of employers only, and includes black lists, "yellow dog contracts," encouragement of company unions, coercion, and other activities.

The new law changes the employers' restrictions slightly, but also adds some on the employee. One of them which organized labor protests most vigorously is the prohibition of "coercion or intimidation" by unions of the employee in the rights guaranteed in the bill, including the right not to join a union if he so chooses. Under the interpretations of some courts, coerced the labor spokesmen, the words "coercion and intimidation" might preclude all organization work, might even restrict the peaceful persuasion argument of one union man to his neighbor.

Sponsors of the bill claim that the restriction is aimed to prevent unionizing excesses which have resulted in the compulsion of employees to join unions against their will.

Another hot point in the bill is the provision that the employer shall make closed shop agreements with a union only when three-fourths of his employees so desire, and express themselves by ballot. This claim the labor spokesmen, a negation of the democratic process, and will severely limit closed shop agreements, and the continued success of the organized labor program.

Under the present labor law there are no limitations on closed shop agreements, except that they are made with bona fide labor organizations as listed with the state labor board.

World Has Clear Record of Broken Pledges by Hitler

Chamberlain's Munich Policy Has Justification, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Paradoxical as it may seem to say so, the policy of Prime Minister Chamberlain at Munich now has had its greatest justification.

For what the British ministry could not achieve last autumn—the solidarity of public sentiment in all the British dominions—has now been secured. Likewise whatever divisions there may have been in public opinion in the United States or in France or anywhere else in the world of democracies have been convincingly erased and a significant unanimity has been substituted.

The situation is not unlike that which occurred in the United States in 1915 when the Lusitania was sunk with the loss of 1,000 American lives. One group insisted that Germany's assurances against repetition could not be trusted and the other group insisted that America should not go to war unless German pledges were broken.

During the interim, American public opinion was solidified, especially after unrestricted German warfare made a scrap of paper of all previous assurances.

Broken Promises Today, the British prime minister points to the promises given by Herr Hitler in a public speech that he would guarantee the Czech state's independence. He recalls the assurances of no further territorial ambitions, and also Hitler's broken promise to consult with Great Britain and France as to questions arising in connection with the future of Czechoslovakia. What is more, the British prime minister accuses the German Fuehrer of fomenting the uprising in Slovakia.

In the face of these events, the world now has a clear record before it of the sheer violation of pledges and lawlessness by the head of the German government. Small wonder that the government of the United States took the bold course of a public denunciation of the action of Hitler in dismembering Czechoslovakia and robbing that nation of sovereign rights.

Although members of both the senate and house did not specify what course the United States should pursue, there was an almost unbroken series of comments approving the declaration by the department of state, which it was announced, had been issued at the direction of President Roosevelt.

Arbitrary Power So far as the congress is concerned, it knows that arbitrary power has been let loose in the world even more dangerous to world peace than that of the kaiser in 1914. The argument for building up America's armament has received an incalculable stimulus, and it seems certain that the so-called neutrality legislation will be revised to give the executive a free hand in dealing with the export of supplies to the democracies as against the totalitarian states.

The expression of moral indignation which is coming from the capitals of the democratic countries may be expected in various ways to percolate through to the German people, who by now must know that the democracies finally will not countenance the venturesome march of conquest on which the nazi party has embarked.

Moral Force Some day, the policies of the democracies will have to crystallize to the point of making it economically attractive for the German people to change their form of government, or its personnel, to one which can be trusted by other governments. Meanwhile, the United States government, acting upon the desire of the vast majority of that people to remain aloof from any possible entanglement, will undoubtedly exert its moral force and some economic pressure to secure a change in the whole European situation.

There is talk, for instance, of an international conference to review the whole territorial problem of Europe, and especially colonial questions, the theory being that the German people will not long tolerate a government which is faced with an economic war of gradual exhaustion when an opportunity may present itself for a new government in Germany to attain a position of economic partnership with the democracies of the world.

Practical steps to appeal to the German people are the only measures short of war which are discussed here as feasible for France and Britain. Notwithstanding the reaction of horror to the events abroad, there is still a feeling that the democracies, acting together, can bring about a change for the better in central Europe.

If Ireland Claims Some of Them, It Must Take Them All

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Recent advice to inform your correspondent—some of them with more than a trace of anger—that General Phil Sheridan was an Irishman and that his services to this country, therefore, must be regarded as a contribution by the emerald isle. General Lee Bullard and General Hugh Drum are similarly claimed in the upper register of a long list of distinguished individuals which includes John L. Sullivan, Gene Tunney, James J. Corbett and Gabby Hartnett. The names and careers of the persons cited sum up to a very impressive total in the life of this country, and their subtraction from the score of American achievement and honor would leave the United States much the poorer and Ireland much the richer.

Recorded information has it, however, that General Sheridan was born in Albany, N. Y., and that Generals Bullard and Drum are natives, General Drum being, indeed, the son of an American officer who was killed in action in the American war against Spain.

Sullivan, Tunney, Corbett and Hartnett also were born and raised in this land, and the tests for which they were famous, barring a few strictly social victories by Mr. Sullivan in London, were performed in the nation of their birth and allegiance.

The claim advanced by Irish correspondents as your Irish newspaper published in New York, is one of great delicacy, as your correspondent learned last year when he awarded to Italy full credit for the lives and works of a long roll of famous, if not exactly honored, individuals who rose to eminence in the criminal branch of American endeavor.

The Italian duce's press at the time was berating the United States as a gangster nation, but, rather oddly, when the deeds of these missionaries were credited to Italy—a generous gesture, one would have thought—there was much indignation against the ascription of Italian blood and culture. They were it appeared, Americans and victims of the corrupt environment of a barbarian country, including even, those who joined us in full maturity and hewed, in more than a figurative sense, a place in American hearts.

Frank Hague Belongs On Irish Honor Roll Now with regard to General Sheridan and the others cited by Irishmen as Irish contributors to the greatness of the United States, the contention is reversed. They were or are, as the case may be, one is heatedly informed, Irishmen though born here, and their careers belong among the treasures of that great nation.

So be it, then, but if it be so the list of noted Irish among us must be opened to others who are plainly eligible on the same ground, starting at random, with the late Boss Dick Croker of New York.

Mr. Croker's career was, in its peculiar way, highly successful, but his contribution to the political morals and public welfare of the United States is one which Ireland may not be alert to claim.

Frank Hague, the mayor of Jersey City, a millionaire by dint of saving on a modest salary, and his precocious son, lately appointed to the highest court in New Jersey, though not long out of law school, are two more who belong to Erin's honor roll by this argument.

Other Distinguished Entries Are Mentioned To Ireland almost must go credit for the contributions to good government and public morals which have honored the names of the O'Connell brothers, of Albany, and to Ireland also such glory as she may find in the lives and works of James M. Curley, of Boston; Maurice B. Connolly, of Queens; Big Tim Sullivan, Commendatore Tomasso Pendergast, of Kansas City; Tin Box Tom Farley, Charles F. Murphy, James J. Walker, Jimmy Hines, John McCooey and those twin guardians of honor, decency and civic purity in the old first ward of Chicago, Hinky-Dink Kenna and Bathhouse John Coughlin—the latter no known kin, however, to still

Farm Group Seeks To Include Dairy Products in AAA

Waupaca County Majority Backs State-Wide Proposal

New London — Farmers of the New London area at a meeting at Washington High school last night joined the large majority of farmers in Waupaca county in backing a state-wide dairy plan to incorporate dairy products in the Agricultural Adjustment act as a basic commodity and subject to the benefits of the act. More than 20 farmers present voted unanimously to support the plan and County Agent Victor Quick reported that 138 out of 170 pledged their support at Clintonville last week.

A Waupaca county dairy advisory committee enlisting the leading dairymen of the county has been organized to submit the plan to farmers for approval and within the next two weeks to present their findings before congressmen at Washington for legislative action, it was explained by Almo Larson, chairman of the committee.

The proposed program, Quick explained, is national in scope and was formulated by Wisconsin farmers after a meeting at Chippewa Falls last January when 26 counties were represented. Dairymen want to support the plan and legislation and consider it best to present a program based on their own studies and experiences rather than one evolved by outside economists and forced upon them, according to the county agent.

Basic Commodity

With milk producing from 20 to 25 per cent of the national farm income, the plan proposes to place dairymen on the same plane as wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and other established basic commodities under government control.

The dairymen propose that a parity payment be made under the A. A. A. program to equal the difference between the average price of butter on the New York market and the parity price, the latter a figure which equals the value of other goods which the farmer must buy in exchange for his produce. The approximate parity price last year, determined on 150 different products, amounted to 38 cents per pound of butterfat while butter on the New York market averaged 28 cents, a parity difference of 10 cents.

To control the program a marketing allotment would be set up for each farm on a cow plus butterfat productivity basis. That is a farm with 20 cows and average productivity of 200 pounds of butterfat would provide an allotment index of 4,000 pounds. The allotment would be national in scope and based on records of the last 10-year period.

Would Set Limits

In addition to the parity payment, an allotment payment of five cents per pound on the farm's allotment would be made for staying within the allotment. In case of exceeding the allotment, neither parity nor allotment payments would be made and a deduction of 25 cents per pound on the excess would be taken from any other payment made under the A. A. A., including soil payments.

Thirty per cent of the allotment payment would have to be earned through improvements in herd management such as cow testing, associations, production bred sires and approved herd health practices. The other 70 per cent would be paid outright.

All benefit payments, both parity and allotment, would be made from the funds in the federal treasury. It was pointed out that the parity payment or difference between the parity price and New York market is variable and the goal is a condition where the market will bring the parity price, rendering government aid unnecessary.

One purpose of the program is to prevent the spreading of the dairy industry into the south which is better adapted to other products now under the A. A. A. program, Quick explained.

Committee Seeks Fund

The county committee is seeking a $300 legislative fund to finance the promotion of the dairymen's interests in Washington and means of raising the fund among the farmers were considered. Final methods will rest with the committee.

On the committee with Larson are Victor Quick, county agent; George Gjertson, town of Scandinavia; Henry Split, town of Union; George Redman, Waupaca; Arthur Ropke, Larrabee; Robert Neely and E. L. McRann, Bear Creek; Leonard Kloebe, Fremont; Joe Keller, town of Madison; and Fred Larson, Mukwa.

At the meeting petitions also were signed by potato growers asking for $12,000 from state funds for a program of research and development for disease resistant potatoes in Wisconsin in an effort to regain prominence in potato production.

A similar meeting on the dairy plan program will be held at the Fremont village hall Monday afternoon.

WE STICK OUT OUR NECKS AGAIN

Infamous though the opinion of Americans may be concerning the conduct of Germany, we must recognize that our national practices are gradually slipping into a highly dangerous zone fraught with nothing but evil for ourselves.

The practice of this nation condemning the acts of another with which it is not directly concerned is bad. It is bad for a number of reasons. In the first place it does not help the assaulted. In the next place it prevents America from making friendly intercessions in order to relieve the assaulted insofar as possible. In the third place it creates a new and bitter hostility between America and the country it happens to condemn. Next it establishes a precedent that needs to be followed or demands an explanation for not following for the future.

If our elected and appointed lords at Washington have no more understanding of the details of American business than they have of the propriety of their conduct in international affairs it is little wonder that our ship of state stops around like a scow in heavy seas without a rudder and without even an anchor.

It is the patriotic duty of the President of the United States to maintain neutrality in all foreign conflicts unless and until the congress declares upon behalf of the people that we shall participate otherwise.

The attitude of our administration in poking its nose into foreign controversies is a sign of the times here at home for we have abandoned the carefully proven path in relation to our foreign affairs no more effectively than we have abandoned the soundest moorings ever constructed upon the earth, those built by our forefathers and which have relation to our own steadiness at home.

SUBPOENAING THE GOVERNOR

When congress is in session the President is the busiest man in the country. When the legislature is in session a governor cannot take time off unless weary nerves demand relaxation.

But in the midst of this legislative session Mr. Heil is sued and a court commissioner issues a subpoena for his attendance. Similar actions have taken place in other states. A subpoena was demanded a few years ago at Washington for the attendance of the President in court.

We do not purposely put our public officials above the law that applies to all. But we must guard them and the public service from the abuses of process that are so common in our courts.

It may be that the case against Mr. Heil is legitimate and that the subpoena demanded for the President's court attendance was fair and just. But it seems to us that when a subpoena is requested for an executive during legislative sessions a presumption should arise against it to such an extent as to require those who demand it to satisfy a court of its necessity.

Courts know, if the people generally do not, that many lawsuits are started as annoyances and that many subpoenas are issued for the same purpose.

A stricter rule towards executives is not a favor to them but a protection to the commonwealth.

BOCK BEER AND ITS GOAT

The gambols of the lamb, the leaps of the lion, and the cussedness of raging blizzards cannot take away one certainty forever coupled to our springtime. And that is Bock beer.

With this beer comes the eternal question of why a goat ushers it in and how it originated.

German dictionaries say that "Bock Bier" is "a strong Bavarian beer," whereas definitions found in the English language declare that Bock beer is nothing but a certain beer made in Einbeck in Hanover and formerly known as Einbecker beer.

If Herr Hitler didn't have the Germans so completely under his thumb the controversy would form as natural a tussle between the Hanoverians and the Bavarians as anyone could wish to see.

But the effort to settle this ticklish problem and to explain the goat that comes around as surely as Bock beer itself has failed to include for consideration another proposition worthy of attention. Does anyone think that Bock beer's appearance so near St. Patrick's Day is not somehow related to that day? Didn't St. Patrick once stray through Einbeck? If we could get that Irish Republican Army's attention away from Ulster and let it take on the winner between Hanover and Bavaria the English would be saved a lot of explosions and we might settle a very perplexing question.

TWO DUCKS IN EVERY POT

A man by the name of Thomas C. Main, a Scotch-Canadian engineer, has accomplished one of the greatest amalgamations the continent has known.

He has joined Canada and America into a realistic effort to preserve wild life, and particularly wild fowl, by convincing leading sportsmen everywhere that wild ducks were increased a million and a half during 1938 and will increase another 2 1/2 million this year, and that they may be shot with impunity so long as their breeding grounds in Canada are preserved to them.

It has been a harping proposition with our bureaucrats in Washington that the diminishing crop of wild fowl was due to greedy American hunters, so we permitted no end of laws and regulations, narrow hunting seasons and smaller bags for game, prohibited live decoys and stacked up a lot of virtually unenforceable restrictions, all in the hope of increasing wild fowl population.

But Mr. Main and many other experts in this country have long contended that the diminishing duck condition was caused by a much more important factor than any stressed. Hence tremendous duck breeding sanctuaries have been created in western Canada scattered over the 1500 mile stretch through Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan and with the knowledge that nearly all the ducks and geese which come into this country are hatched and raised in Canada.

The great sanctuaries now devoted to raising wild fowl were once drained for agricultural purposes but the political statesmen who drained them forgot to test the soil before expending the money. After the money was spent the soil was found to pulverize and to be no more useful for agricultural purposes than certain parts of our own Horicon marsh that were drained in the same manner 30 years ago.

Mr. Main says, and he is backed up by no end of native experts who are pouring American dollars into his venture that if the political engineers up in Canada hadn't taken off about a million acres for agricultural purposes that couldn't be farmed we might still be shooting as big a bag of ducks and geese as our grandfathers.

We simply made the mistake of thinking we could shoot ducks before we hatched them. When you come to think of it that isn't an unusual mistake among "statesmen."

With Ducks Unlimited, Inc., as the vehicle that undertakes the work, with the marshes, bays and rivers of Canada returned to all their pristine glory, we may find ourselves in a few years able to shoot a duck or two hereabouts without going through a battle of the Marne.

The nature of the support Mr. Main is getting, the men and institutions from which he is getting it, presages happy results.

A NEW STORY FOR THE SUCKERS

Maude and Robert Ault on trial as swindlers in Illinois were entitled to some sort of a reward even if they were rogues.

The Aults gave birth to a new Man of Mystery with another "mysterious estate." They abandoned the Spanish Prisoner, Captain Kidd and his buried bullion and Sir Francis Drake, English admiral, dead about four centuries, and who was still alleged to own most of London. They would have nothing to do with such hoary chestnuts. The idea of following in the ancient calf path through the woods stirred their blood in revolt. They certainly could be original enough to bring out something new, and in these days of glamorous figures and equally glamorous fortunes far outshining any of the musty past, why should we be chained to the cart that forever rolls along in a rut?

The indictment against the Aults accused them of supplanting Sir Francis Drake and all those flashing figures who sailed the Spanish Main with a fellow carrying the moniker of Max Orendorff, a plain bootlegger with unbrushed teeth, residing temporarily in Atlanta penitentiary, but having planted 50 or 60 million away in the soil some place before the law caught up to him.

With this story the Aults, the government established, swindled investors out of $125,000 by promising them $200 for every dollar they invested in contributing to the fund which would make life easier and much more pleasant for poor old Max who, despite his 50-odd millions buried away, could use a few thousand for pie and cigarette money and who would be so overwhelmed with gratitude that he would shower his benefactors with gold until they staggered under the burden.

The court erred in refusing to exercise a bit of leniency with the Aults. It gave them ten years at hard labor.

Had they pulled one of those grisly ancient out of the bag the ten years would have been proper. But in at least bestirring their minds in this lazy world, and hatching out a new story they were entitled to a 10 per cent reduction in penalty, a sort of finder's reward.

So far as the suckers are concerned we must come to recognize the fact that people live who delight in surrendering their cash for stories so gorgeously impossible that there who wrote the Arabian Nights thought it would sound ludicrous to include them.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—It is written in the family record of the German-Irish lay preacher, Philip Embury:

"On Christmas Day, being Monday, 25, of December, in the year 1752, the Lord shone into my soul by a glimpse of his redeeming love." Thereby was born one of New York's most famous houses of worship, the old John Street Church, "Mother Church of American Methodism."

The John Street Church, in the heart of the financial district, was founded 16 years after "the Lord shone" into Embury's soul. In 1768, while New York was still a Crown colony, it is the oldest of all Methodist churches on the American continent.

The Reverend Mr. Robert H. Dolliver, its present pastor, was telling me of its dramatic beginning. Embury had been licensed by John Wesley in Ireland to preach, but after coming to New York it was six years before he took the pulpit. He had a cousin, Barbara Heck, who came home one evening to find several men playing at cards in her kitchen. With her apron she swept the cards from the table and into the fire, and then ran down the street to Embury's house.

"Philip," she said, "you've got to preach to us, or we are all going to hell, and God will require our blood at your hands."

"But I have no church, no congregation," he protested.

"Preach in your own home next Sunday," she urged. "I'll furnish the congregation."

He did preach the following Sunday in his own home. New York's Municipal Building stands today on the site of that dwelling where those first Wesleyan services were held. On October 30, 1768, the first "Wesley Chapel" on John Street was dedicated. There has been a church building on that site from that day to this, without any interruption of services. Surrounded by mighty skyscrapers of insurance companies, the present John Street Church is 98 years old.

Long before the term "sit-down strike" was born, the John Street Church had one. That was about the middle of last century when a movement started in the congregation to take the church uptown. There was, however, a stubborn minority on the Board of Trustees. To prevent changing the site of the church, these trustees and their families barricaded themselves in the house of worship, eating and sleeping there. A mob of angry churchmen formed outside and rushed the church. A heavy hickory wagon spoke, by one of the mob, was later picked up and is one of the relics that is still kept by the church. The minority prevailed "fortunately, we believe now," says Mr. Dolliver.

And, fortunately, too, the Supreme Court then had not pronounced sit-down strikes illegal.

The John Street Church is one of the few historic places still in active daily use. For 83 years it has had daily mid-day services. For the last 20 years on Friday noons the church has held luncheon for women, with an average attendance of 800, mostly girls working in the Wall Street district. The success of the women's luncheon led the pastor last October to inaugurate weekly luncheons for men—a 25-cent meal, served without profit and followed by brief religious services.

It's "the old-time religion," the pastor explains, without ceremonies. The men, after luncheon, choose the hymns they want to sing, and frequently select the Bible passage they want read.

The luncheon-worshippers are men of many faiths, come from the soulless counting houses and the cold, austere skyscrapers—come from the hectic "change and the battle for dollars to "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow," and bow their heads in noonday prayer. (Copyright, 1939)

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Saturday, March 16, 1929

Any hope that the city of Appleton might have had to collect compromised bank taxes from the state were dashed when it was ruled that they could not be collected. The city was attempting to collect part of the tax refund to banks from the county, but no agreement had been reached.

C. C. Nelson, a member of the state fair board, was attending a meeting in Milwaukee.

The Winnebago county board voted for a grade separation project on Highway 26, just south of Oshkosh.

Elmer Ott, coach of Kaukauna high school basketball team, was so excited when his team defeated Menasha in the tournament in the latter city that he fainted. Kaukauna and Neenah were to meet in the final game that evening.

25 YEARS AGO

Saturday, March 21, 1914

George Schilling won the Keller oratorical contest and Miss Sara Rysc won the gold medal poetry contest at the high school the previous evening.

The commission council was considering rejecting all bids for an extensive paving program and doing the work itself this year. It was believed the work could be done more cheaply by the city.

Appleton Athletic association closed a deal whereby it became the owner of the property used the last several years as the Wisconsin-Indiana league ballpark. The property, consisting of about ten acres, was purchased from Mrs. Katherine L. Brown.

Mrs. William Nemacheck was in Chicago to submit to an operation by Dr. Golden.

A Verse for Today

A WOMAN'S WORLD

The ancients thought that Atlas held the world upon his shoulders. . . If he faltered they would be unceremoniously hurled into the chaos of a broken day.

I know a woman's world is held by her. She cannot stray from the high goal she sets. Or all the household altars break, and her Revolt shakes mighty walls and parapets.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Intramural squabble No. 1 at present goes on between Secretary Hil-Ern-Harold Ickes and stately Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It is over boat and picnic concessions on Boulder Dam reservoir on the Colorado.

The only thing these two important public officials have in common is a hatred of Hitlerism, which they express often and forcefully. Next to Hitler it would seem they dislike each other most.

The affair over Lake Mead (which is Boulder Dam reservoir) is their second battle of the Marne. The first was over the confirmation of Ebert K. Burlew as Under-Secretary of Interior. Ickes wanted him. He had had long experience in the department. Pittman denounced him as unsuitable for such a post. They fought that out in Public Lands Committee and in the Senate. Ickes won.

The second battle began when Pittman proposed to annex part of the public domain about Lake Mead as a recreation ground for Nevada. Boulder Dam backs up water in precipitous Colorado Canyon for 100 miles. A few miles back of the dam, one arm of the lake reaches out into Nevada along the Vegas Wash, within 19 miles of desert-bound Las Vegas (10,000 population), in southernmost Nevada. There are 2,610 square miles of federally owned public domain around the reservoir. Pittman introduced a bill setting aside 12 miles of it as a state park. His 12 miles included the outstanding arm of the lake in Vegas Wash.

Gamblers Interested?

The idea was to let the state set up a resort on the lake shore, attract patrons from far and near, as well as make an outing spot where Las Vegas could sail boats, fish and picnic.

Las Vegas endorsed the plan. So did the state legislature. Bitterly opposed was diminutive Boulder City, created by the six companies which built the dam and now supported in part by the boat and picnic on the lake.

Ickes, out west on tour, inspected the park site. Into his car were poured tales which Pittman says were conjured up by Boulder City concessionaires to block the state park.

The surprised Senate Public Lands Committee heard Ickes' reports and ordered hearings, putting Pittman at the head of them.

"It would appear," Ickes wrote, "that as a result of the recent cleanup of anti-social conditions in the city of Los Angeles, a number of gamblers who formerly flourished there have taken themselves to Las Vegas. It is rumored that they have set about to monopolize the gambling concerns of that city. It is further rumored that they are heartily in support of this state park because they want to extend their enterprises so as to be able to reach out to the tourists who visit Boulder Dam and Lake Mead."

"It would not be the first time that persons with ulterior motives imposed upon a representative or senator (this burned Pittman up) by persuading him to offer a bill that would create an objectionable special privilege without divulging to him their ulterior motives."

Suspects Ickes Slap-Back

He pointed out that 160 acres of privately owned land in the park area were reported under option to the Los Angeles exhibitors. Under Nevada's liberal gambling and saloon license laws, Ickes estimated, there could be "unrestricted drinking and gambling" in the area.

Pittman, suspecting that this was Ickes' way of getting even for his earlier rough handling of Burlew, denied there was any gambler motive. He said state laws would prohibit gambling in the entire park area.

He even proposed to gerrymander the 160 acres right out of the park, thus shutting it away from access to the lake.

But Ickes remembered that Nevada's legislature had kept that state the hell-roaringest spot in the U. S.

Pittman termed such an attitude a "reflection on the good name of the state of Nevada," and predicted the Senate would pass the bill, and slap Ickes back among his Indian paintings and tilted bathrooms.

HOLLYWOOD: Have you ever noticed when anyone announces that they've found a pocketbook, how everybody jumps up and claims it before they've even checked up to see if theirs is gone? There was a City Council meeting in New York the other day and one Councilman was mobbed when he held up a wallet and asked: "Where is it?"

Come to find out the darn thing belonged to Mrs. Earle, the only woman member. An' she almost lost her life gettin' it back!

I lost a nickel through a grate once, when I was a kid, an' got me a long stick with a piece of gum on the end an' tried to pick it up. A crowd of grown-ups gathered around, givin' me suggestions an' taking up lots more than a nickel's worth of their time, worryin' over me recoverin' my five-cent piece. ### TEA LEAF POULITICE FOR BURNS

Popular magazines some time ago described in the usual extravagant fashion the alleged discovery by a factory physician of the efficacy of the tannic acid treatment for burns. The Pittsburgh Medical Review, May 1830, contained a report of the effects of such treatment of burns. It gave simple instructions, as follows:

A 5 per cent solution is squeezed from a sponge over the denuded (raw) surface, which is then dressed with soft ointment (say soft petrolatum or vasoline), or, if it is more commonly called in this country, petrolatum or petroleum jelly, with or without tannin. Pain immediately abates, and the healing process is wonderfully rapid. The tannin (tannic acid) solution must, of course, be freshly applied as often as the dressing is renewed.

To that I would add the advice to renew or disturb the dressing ONLY when discomfort demands it. Once any burn, wound, or sore surface is clean and in condition to heal the less frequently it is dressed or handled or disturbed or moved unnecessarily, the more satisfactory will it heal. Tannin or tannic acid is a strongly astringent brownish white shiny substance obtained from nutgalls, sumac and tea. Coffee contains less tannin than tea.

Tea or coffee used without boiling contains less tannin than do the same beverages after boiling. More over boiling drives off the pleasant aroma of coffee or of tea. That's why I say it is a crime to boil the coffee, and when you smell coffee before you get down to breakfast the cook should be sentenced forthwith. Tannin is not bitter at all, but oh, gosh, it does pucker up things and harden you! Indeed.

Tannin (tannic acid) is so soluble in warm water as it is in boiling water.

Way back in 1871, Dr. W. H. Searle, Wausau, Wisconsin, published in the Chicago Medical Examiner (April issue) his homely remedy for burns, reporting its successful use in the case of a child who had been terribly burned over the entire front of the body, arms and legs.

A bottle of hot water the child had upset upon itself. Dr. Searle prepared a large poultice of tea leaves, softening the leaves with hot water, and applied it while yet quite warm, upon cotton wool (I suggest that sterile gauze would be better) over the entire burned surface. "Almost like magic the sufferings abated and, without the use of any other anodyne, the child soon fell into a quiet sleep. In a few hours I removed the application, and reapplied it where it was necessary. I found the parts discolored and apparently tanned. Tenderness had nearly disappeared. . . . little patient made a good recovery in about three weeks. Since then on several occasions I have had re-

$5,000 and the possibility of $7,000 ahead of him.

The entire commission staff, from highly paid engineers and technicians, to lowly office boys, call him "Cal." But he is their boss, and respected, although only in his capacity as a boss. For months he worked nights and Sundays on plans to reorganize the department to make it run more efficiently and smoothly.

He scanned expense accounts, insisted on economies, declaring that a state employee should never be allowed to pay more for the state's money for a hotel room than he would of his own. He started weekly meetings of the commission's staff of hundreds to pep up morale. He simplified commission procedure to save money for petitioners and utilities. And he is still working, still getting more ideas.

son to recommend tea leaves, till now I have come to prefer it to all other remedies in the first stage of burns and scalds. . . .

I, L. D. Doc Brady) suggest that the tea leaves be made into a poultice with BOILING water, rather than just hot water.

Ordinary green tea is okay for such a poultice, but black tea contains more tannin and would probably be even better.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tuberculosis Not Contagious

Your statement that tuberculosis is not a contagious disease has set me thinking. (KLU)

Answer—Contagious means transferred by contact. Infectious means caused by germs invading the tissues. Tuberculosis is infectious, practically never contagious. Not casual contact but prolonged or repeated intimate contact or association is necessary for infection. Malaria is infectious, never contagious; likewise yellow fever—mosquitoes convey these infectious, not personal contact. Scabies (the itch), ringworm) is contagious, but also infectious. According to all present knowledge any disease which is at all contagious must be infectious, caused by one or another organism, germ, parasite; but many infectious diseases are not contagious. Infectiousness through casual contact. Popularly the terms "contagious" and "infectious" are applied indiscriminately.

Dwindling

I would like to have your booklet on "Slimming" as you call it. (Mrs. E.D.)

Answer—I call it dwindling. Send ten cent coin and self addressed envelope for "New Design for Dwindling."

Please tell me whether diesel oil engines generate or throw off as much carbon monoxide gas as gasoline engines do. (Mrs. A.W.K.)

Answer—Any fuel burning or exploding without free draft or adequate supply of air may generate carbon monoxide gas.

Says You Must Slow Down if You Want to Catch Up With Sleep

Chicago—(G)—Gaining restless sleep is like feeding doves, says Dr. Robert S. Carroll in Hygieia, American Medical association publication.

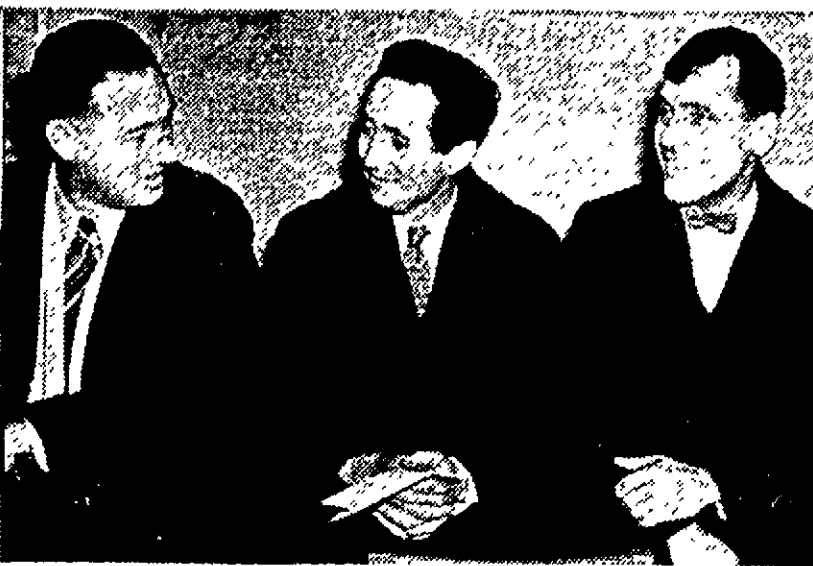

One moves around and waves his hand full of corn with little success, but when he becomes motionless a doubling, confiding, inquiring dove will perch on the wrist and feed.

"That is the way to attract slumber," Dr. Carroll said. "Through repose alone we woe sleep when one learns to compose the mind and body, sleep will care for itself."

The doctor said that "fear of sleeplessness is an outstanding symptom of insomnia because this fear becomes mental tension and thus the thing dreaded is created in the dreading."

Change or Repeal Of Tenure Law Is Asked in Petition

Requests Circulated at Meeting of County School Boards

A petition asking for the repeal or a change in the teacher tenure law so that it will not affect rural school teachers was circulated at the annual meeting of Outagamie county school boards yesterday at the Wilson Junior High school.

While the petition was not formally introduced at the convention, many members signed it and it will be sent to the state assemblymen and senator from the county. Signers of the petition said that the present tenure law is detrimental to both teachers and the school boards.

It was pointed out that the rural school teacher teaches only an average of three years in a district, and that unless there is a change in the law boards may not retain any one teacher for five years so that he comes under the jurisdiction of the law.

Purpose of Teaching
"The purpose of the instructor is not to teach facts alone, but to teach the student how to fit in a social situation, to think as an individual, to be thoughtful, intellectual and social," J. F. Shaw of the state department of public instruction said in a talk at yesterday's afternoon session.

"Ideals are like stars, you can't hold them in your hands, but you can love them and live by them," he said. "Let us dedicate ourselves to the service and welfare of the child."

Shaw, H. H. Helble, Appleton high school principal, and Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent of schools who was in charge of the meeting, spoke at yesterday's morning session.

Entertainment was provided by pupils of the Dale state graded school. There was music and folk dancing.

Following the regular program a question period was held. Among the subjects discussed were provisions of the teachers tenure law and the minimum teacher's wage law. A resolution proposing the creation of a county board of education was introduced during the question period but no action was taken on it.

Daladier Wins in Two Votes; Notes Assail Germany

Paris for consultation and dispatched a note to the nazi government saying she did not recognize the German occupation of Czechoslovakia as legitimate.

Premier Daladier called an urgent cabinet meeting for 9:30 a. m. (3:30 a. m., C.S.T.) tomorrow to discuss the rapidly developing central European situation.

It was understood the meeting, called after Daladier had conferred with British Ambassador Sir Eric Phipps, was to consider particularly what kind of support France and Britain could give to Rumania.

These moves came as Premier Daladier won a vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies during debate on his demand for secret and almost dictatorial powers.

The Ambassador to Berlin, Robert Coulondre, was instructed to present the French note to Germany at once.

In answer to the summons to return to Paris, it was expected the envoy would arrive here Monday for consultation and a report on the situation.

Daladier's vote of confidence was 334 to 258.

Policies Attacked
The balloting was on a motion of rightist Deputy Henri de Kerillis that the lower house refuse to discuss the decree demands.

The premier posed the question of confidence after a violent attack on his policies by De Kerillis.

De Kerillis charged that the French government knew about German troop concentrations for entry into Czechoslovakia well in advance of the actual entry.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet admitted he had heard of them as early as last Saturday but insisted the took up the matter with Britain at once.

De Kerillis then charged that Daladier and Bonnet had proven themselves incapable of leading France in the present emergency, and moved that the chamber refuse to discuss the decree demands.

Daladier sprang to his feet and made the motion a question of confidence. With the rejection of the motion, the session was suspended until 3 o'clock p. m. (9 a. m., C. S. T.).

London—The British government, acting in concert with France, directed its ambassador in Berlin to deliver a formal note to the German government saying the invasion of Czechoslovakia represented a complete repudiation of the Munich agreement.

The British foreign office announced also that the note which Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson was instructed to present would state that "his majesty's government regard as without legal basis the changes effected by Germany's military action in Czechoslovakia."

The French government announced in Paris that a similar note would be presented by the French ambassador in Berlin.

The British announcement outlining the nature of the note to be presented said that "recent events in central Europe represent a complete repudiation of the Munich agreement and the undertakings of peaceful cooperation exchanged at that time by the parties to it."

Confers With Envoy
Meanwhile, Secretary Viscount Halifax consulted the American, French and secret Russian ambassadors.

German Ambassador Herbert von Dirksen also called, giving rise to speculation that he might have been ordered to return to Berlin in retaliation for Britain's calling home of Ambassador Henderson "to report."

Indicating the urgency with which Britain considered the situation, Prime Minister Chamberlain also summoned the cabinet to an unusual Saturday night meeting.

The cabinet was to give immediate consideration to the European situation. The prime minister admitted that his policy of European conciliation collapsed with Germany's occupation of Czechoslovakia.

The premier was swinging British foreign policy sharply around toward the course long demanded by his critics—a united front with other nations against further expansion by Germany that might be construed as an attempt to dominate all Europe.

Chamberlain, who had planned to spend the weekend in Birmingham, where last night in a speech he bitterly criticized the German government and Chancellor Hitler for marching into Czechoslovakia, hurried back to London to consult his ministers on his new policy.

Aspiring Criminal Lawyer Is Not Only Good but She's Pretty

New York—She's 23 and pretty, with curly black hair and a figure a magazine illustrator's model might envy, and what is she going to be? A criminal lawyer!

Estelle B. Barb, who appeared in general sessions this week to enter a plea in her first murder case, said today she's quite serious about it—"I'm determined to be a success at the bar."

She has been an attorney eight months, and has won all her jury criminal cases but one; and that was a partial victory. She succeeded in getting two counts of a three-count indictment dismissed.

Her father died when she was three. She's the youngest of 6 children, and she worked her way through school, teaching piano and elocution, doing clerical jobs and working as a law clerk. She's been "gainfully employed" since she was 14.

She had a "straight A" law school record in St. Lawrence university, Brooklyn, was a bachelor of laws cum laude; a master of laws magna cum laude; became a master of laws at 22, the youngest in New York State last year, and was the first woman ever to attain top honors in her post-graduate school.

"I don't expect to win cases because I am a woman," she said, "but because I prepare a case thoroughly and try it well."

Her first client in a murder case is James Pryor, a Negro her own age. She pleaded him innocent. The case will be tried this spring.

Find Bodies of Plane Victims
Oldtime Alaska Prospector Claims $1,000 Reward for Discovery

Juneau, Alaska—P—An oldtime prospector claimed a $1,000 reward today as the bodies of six persons who died in one of Alaska's worst commercial airline accidents were brought to Juneau from an isolated island on which the plane crashed Feb. 12.

The bodies of Pilot Alonzo Cope and his five passengers aboard a Marine Airways plane which disappeared in a storm enroute to Fairbanks after flashing a distress signal were landed here by the coast guard cutter Haida.

Discovery of the wrecked plane in a clump of small trees a few hundred feet inshore on Grand Island was made by Charles Ashvov, veteran northland prospector, four days ago. He was delayed on his return to Juneau by stormy weather and did not arrive until yesterday with his hands blistered from rowing.

The Haida went to the scene immediately and removed the crushed and frozen bodies from the wreckage. Officers of the cutter said the bodies were found in a heap with arms raised, indicating Cope had warned his passengers of an impending crash and they had raised their arms to protect themselves as best they could.

Cope, about 39, veteran Anchorage, Alaska, flier died wearing the radioophone equipment he used to report his plane "icing up."

Passenger victims were George Chamberlain, 42, former Washington state senator; John Chapell, E. E. Ek, 29, and Earl Clifford, all Juneau seamen, and Jack Lennon, 18, Craig, Alaska. All but Lennon were married.

Charges New Deal Is Not Sincere in Business Program

Senator Taft Says Republicans Must Assume Leadership

New York—Charging the administration with insincerity in its recent overtures to industry, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) asserted today the Republican party must assume leadership in giving encouragement to business.

This can be done, the Ohio senator said in an address prepared for delivery before the National Republican club, by the elimination as far as possible of government fixing of prices, wages and business practices.

Added to what he said was a tremendous burden of taxation caused largely by inefficient management of relief, Taft contended that government regulation and competition under the New Deal "have directly discouraged private activity of every kind."

"More men have gone out of business in the last five years than have gone into business, because of the complete uncertainty whether they can survive a constant government interference," he declared.

Reversal Of Policy
"Now we are told that everything has changed, and the administration is going to treat business like human beings. The very adoption of a so-called policy of appeasement admits that American business men and men who would like to go into business have been haggard and discouraged to an extent which requires an absolute reversal of government policy."

"Secretary Hopkins made a speech in Des Moines, and Secretary Morgenthau is having mottoes hung in the offices of the treasury department with the legend 'does it help recovery?'"

"But as the old saying goes, 'fine words butter no parsnips.' The appeasement policy is like the famous 'breathing spell for business,' only a smoke-screen to conceal the real policies of the administration. It cannot be sincere. Whenever any question of action arises, the president is just as determined in his previous policies as he ever has been before."

"The present administration has no confidence in the efficacy of private business activity..."

Medical Carts Sent To Mexico Hinterland

Mexico City — Not unlike some of the old time medicine shows of the United States, medical carts are touring Mexico teaching hygiene.

They do not sell patent medicines but frequently give away remedies for certain of the plagues the government is combating.

Most picturesque of the carts is the malaria cart that is pulled by two great oxen. Frequently it disappears for weeks. It travels the deep hinterlands that few white men enter to disperse medical explanation and liberal quantities of quinine to the backwoods dwellers.

Mules May be Smart But They're Thinning

Denver — The population of Colorado's "industrialized mules" is dropping at the rate of about 1,000 a year.

Records of the planning commission disclosed the decrease has occurred each year since 1936 when the census showed there were 12,609 "long ears" employed at industrial plants.

Coal miners claim the mule is

the "smartest equine on four feet." They cite many examples of intelligence to support the claim. Among them is the assertion that many mules will count the number of couplings that rattle as he takes the slack from a train of cars and if there is one more car than there should be the mule won't move.

Sixty thousand letters containing money went to the dead letter office in 1938.

Conservation, he said, "is not a venture that can be reduced to any single effort or to be formed out to any single agency. . . . ## Sees Chance to Get Million From U. S.

Green Bay Man Says State Has Claim on Menominee Reservation

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau) Madison.—Members of the legislature's joint finance committee this week were informed of an opportunity by which the state of Wisconsin can pick up an extra $1,000,000 to balance its budget by the prosecution of a claim against the federal government for some 10,000 acres of swamp land now held by the Menominee Indians on their reservation.

The legislature's informant was L. W. Kennitz of Green Bay, the only person to oppose a bill which would abolish the position of special deputy in charge of Indian claims in the attorney general's department. The present deputy is John W. Reynolds of Green Bay.

In 1853, Kennitz related, the federal government and the state of Wisconsin made an agreement to keep the Menominees in Wisconsin rather than move them into Minnesota. Wisconsin acquiesced in the reservation plan. Now, according to Kennitz, it appears that there may be a fault in the legislative proceeding by which the state agreed.

By looking into the affair, said Kennitz, the state of Wisconsin "stands a good chance of winning a million dollars, a chance now lying dormant."

The bill to abolish the job, at the request of Attorney General John E. Martin, has already passed the senate, and after it is considered by the finance committee, will be sent to the assembly.

Appearing on the measure for his superior, Deputy Attorney General J. Ward Reitor said that the position was "indefensible," but that "we have nothing against Mr. Reynolds because he is a Progressive." He called the job a "political sinecure," and said that in six years the state has spent $17,000 for attorneys' fees in Indian claims without "one single claim being successfully maintained."

Head of Oshkosh Firm Denies Labor Charges

Oshkosh.—(P)—Charges that a dozen workmen were laid off at the Leach company plant in 1937 because of labor union activities were denied yesterday by Elbert C. Leach, company president, at a national relations board hearing.

The company is charged by the board with unfair labor practices. Leach said the men were discharged because of inefficiency, and for economy. Following a strike in the summer of 1937, he said, production conditions at the plant grew worse and the company considered discontinuance of some manufactured items.

Since the discharge of the men, Leach testified, production in some departments has been halved, partly through labor saving machinery. He denied he had referred to the union as "a bunch of communists."

Beauty of Chilean Women and Scenery Amazes U. S. Visitors

The Post-Crescent herewith prints another interesting letter from Mrs. R. E. Thickens of Neenah, who, with her husband, is making a leisurely tour around South America on the steamship Bremen.

BY JEAN WILEY THICKENS

Valparaiso, Chile.—Out of the mist, our ship crept into Valparaiso harbor. It almost never rains on the coast of Chile but at certain seasons of the year the mist is so heavy that one can scarcely see across the street. Bare brown hillsides ring the harbor and dozens of fishing schooners ride at anchor. Cars are waiting at the pier to drive the passengers wherever they desire.—A brief sight seeing trip around Valparaiso which is a large, bustling ultra modern city of about three hundred-thousand population. It is almost completely lacking in the dreamy Spanish Colonial atmosphere which made our visit to Lima such a memorable one.

On the map Chile is a silly, pink strip along the west coast of South America which measures three thousand miles in length and only about 150 miles in width. After a complete circuit of the city we took our bags and drove to the O'Higgins Hotel in Vina del Mar, the favorite seaside resort; for Chileans, and a very picturesque and beautiful spot. The hotel is named after an Irish peddler who came to Chile when Pizarro ruled Spanish South America and made himself a power in the country as soldier and statesman. There is also an O'Higgins avenue which sounds rather incongruous in a Spanish city.

Chile is noted especially for three things: Its exceptionally beautiful women, its melons which taste like New York ice cream, and its lobster which are caught on the island of Juan Fernandez, about three hundred miles off the coast of Chile. Its women are so lovely that one begins to think he must be in Hollywood. The Chileanos are all of English, Irish or German descent, the Araucanian Indians, who originally inhabited the country, are almost extinct now, owing to the "Old Spanish custom," initiated at the time of Pizarro, of offering a dollar a head for any Indians who were killed, thus purifying the race in somewhat the method in certain places in Europe today. Most of the women are blue or grey eyed and a large percentage of them are blond. Most of the babies and small children one sees on the streets are tow-headed. We took tea in the hotel about six o'clock (as no one dines in Chile before 9:30 or 10) and the bewildering array of pulchritude was almost blinding. Also they

The climate and scenery resemble southern California to an astonishing degree and if one did not hear the people chattering Spanish one might almost believe he was driving along the ocean boulevard at Santa Monica.

The government of Chile is decidedly shaky, judging from the shopkeepers' desire to be paid in American dollars rather than Chilean pesos which by the way are only worth three cents each now, at the present rate of exchange. The president is said to be decidedly

Masonry Class Is Object of Meeting

Committee Confers With Employers on Apprenticeship Plan

The advisory committee appointed to coordinate the new Appleton Vocational school class for apprentices in masonry with the building industry met with employers of masons last night in the school.

Talk centered on the plan whereby apprentices will be indentured to employers while they are receiving instruction at the school and then will be accepted as full-fledged workmen.

The committee, which advises the school regarding the course and will handle any dealings with the industrial commission, is composed of six men, two representing the masons union, two the contractors, and two the dealers in supplies.

Walter Gmeiner and Fred Piette are the contractor members, Carl Retza and Norman Kohl the masons, and Thomas Arbogast and Roland Schabo the dealers.

Three apprentices are already taking instruction from Edward Rammer on Thursday afternoons at the school. Four years of work are necessary before the apprentice becomes a journeyman. Employers who have young men learning the trade but are not indentured were invited to last night's meeting. It is expected the class will be enlarged considerably.

Science Flourishes Only in Democracy, Dr. Gilbert States

Declaring that "science can flourish only where there is intellectual freedom," Dr. W. P. Gilbert, assistant professor of physics at Lawrence college, told Lawrence students at a colloquium Friday morning that more than ever before scientists are "attempting to adjust science to the needs of men and our social order."

"Scientists all agree, however, that science cannot exist if democracy is to fail, for only with intellectual freedom can it progress and aid mankind."

"Scientists the world over have been accused of being responsible for our present economic and social disorders," he said. "Science recognizes there are remnants of truth in these accusations, for never has it been deeply concerned with the effect of its discoveries on mankind until now."

Paderewski Charges Seizure Is Barbarism

Chicago.—(P)—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the renowned pianist and former Premier of Poland, said the "enslaving" of Czechoslovakia brings humanity back to the epoch of dark barbarism.

He expressed the strong protest against the latest Nazi coup in a letter yesterday to Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of Czechoslovakia and now visiting professor at the University of Chicago.

"pink" in his leanings, and there is an air of unrest and uncertainty amongst the people which does not augur well for the future. People are spending money recklessly for they do not have much confidence in the stability of their currency. A pretty Chilean woman who has a shop in the O'Higgins Hotel told us she was spending her pesos as fast as she got them but was putting her United States dollars and her English pounds (which she received from tourists) in her sock, and would not even trust them to a bank.

Violets Lend Charm

This young Parisian buys violets for her first spring hat and wraps them in a mist of mysterious veil. The straw hat is black, the violets shade from rosy mauve to purple, and the veil, which swaths both and ties under the chin, is a deep rosy mauve.

Boy in Early Teens Undergoing Change; Needs Understanding

BY ANGELO PATRI

The boy who has a sister is in need of help from his father and mother. Perhaps understanding would be the better term for what I mean. When a boy is in his early teens, and his sister close to him in age, he usually looks inferior in comparison to her. She is quick where he is slow. She talks faster and with more lightness. She is more sympathetic and responsive while he hangs back silently. She is better in school work than he. He is lucky at this period of life if he is not denounced as lazy, dumb and a poor second to his bright sister.

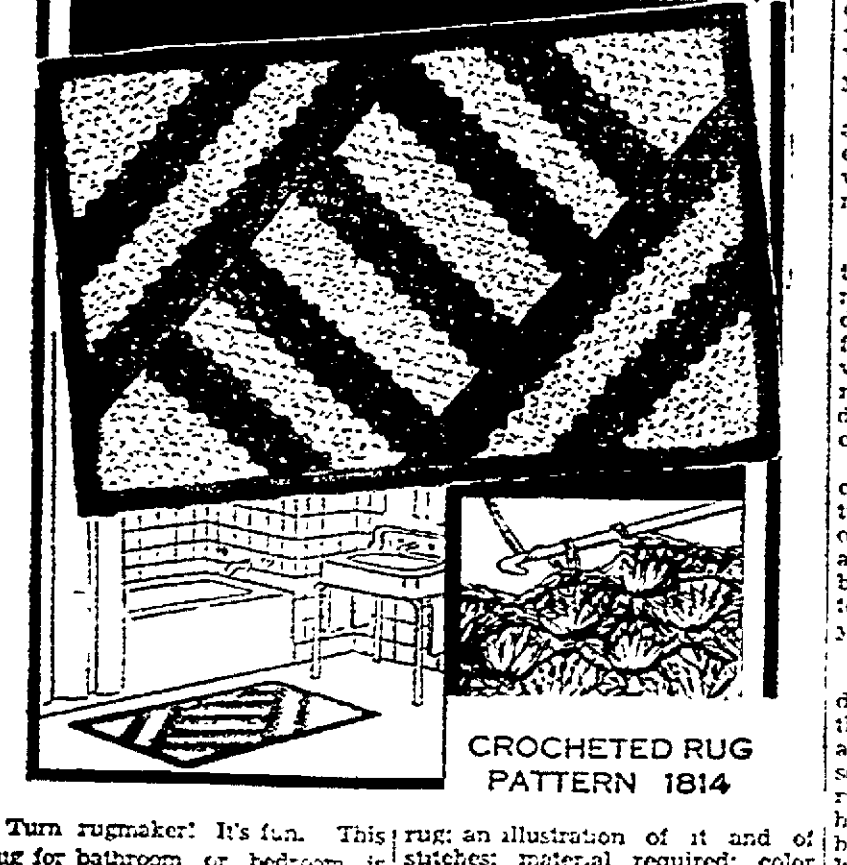

The truth is that at this age many boys slow down mentally. In school work they make lower grades, and are seemingly content. They move with heavy feet, and there is no willingness about their attitude when asked to do what they know they ought to do. They don't want to get out of a chair once they are in it, and assume all sorts of sprawling positions whenever they are at rest, which is most of the time. They hate to get up in the morning, they hate to do their chores, they hate most things that come their way. All the while sister is gay and beaming, winning praise wherever she goes.

Please let brother alone as much as you can. He is busy growing a complete outfit of organs and their functions. Great changes are being made in his body. He ought to be wearing a sign, "Closed for construction," instead of which he is being prodded into "Business as usual."

His growth is taking so much of his energy that he has little left for study. Some of them have none left at all, and get into serious difficulties in high school because of deficient subjects. The usual boy eats more than usual, sleeps more, too, and seems to do less than ever. The truth is that he was never so active in his life, but his activity is hidden and the marvels he is creating within himself must go unheralded and unsung. Give him time; let him rest more; keep him clean; make him bathe—swimming is the best possible exercise for him—keep encouraging him to stay above the danger mark until this stage passes.

In its time it passes. The laziness disappears like magic and he is alert and alive and on his toes. The cloudy mind clears, the flabby will tightens, the wobbling purpose is steadied and made strong. The boy has grown up and is on his way to manhood. He strides by his sister now and leaves her well behind him. In school and athletics and work, he surpasses her. "He has improved so you wouldn't know him."

Here's Hand Which Shows Work of Luck

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I send you a hand that, in my opinion, represents a very nice example of capitalizing one's luck. It occurred in a match-point duplicate game in this city. My partner (South) was the only one in the room to fulfill a three no trump contract. Indeed, while four other declarers were meeting defeat, he actually made an overtrick. This was the hand:

"South, dealer.
"Neither side vulnerable.
"Match-point duplicate.

"The bidding:
South West North East
1 diamond Pass 1 heart Pass
1 spade Pass 2 hearts Pass
2 no trump Pass 3 hearts Pass
3 no trump Pass Pass Pass

"Perhaps South's last bid was somewhat of a stretch, but he was an excellent card player who had full confidence in his ability to get every trick out of the play. I must say that he justified this confidence in himself.

"West opened the ten of clubs, the only unbid suit. Declarer won and boldly led his singleton heart and took the finesse. When the queen held he cashed the ace, discarding a club from his own hand; then took the spade finesse to the queen. It held and the next play was a low diamond to dummy's queen. West ducking to preserve his tenace position. Now another spade was led to the closed hand and, when East played the eight spot, declarer merely passed the trick, playing his own nine. West won with the ten and returned the nine of clubs. My partner won, cashed his remaining club trick and the spade ace; then, when the spade king fell from East, threw West on lead with the fourth spade. As you will notice, West had been stripped of clubs, hearts, and spades, hence had to return a diamond. West must have been a little rattled because he made a play now that cost him an extra trick. He led down the diamond ace, then played the last two tricks with the ten and king of diamonds. Obviously, if West had stayed awake, he would have led the eight of diamonds instead of the ace, and my partner would have had to come to him with the last two tricks. Nevertheless, the contract still would have been fulfilled, which was more than the other declarers could say. Don't you agree that my partner took splendid advantage of a lucky lay of cards?"

Yes, I fully agree that the declarer played the hand to the best possible advantage and that he fully deserved a top score on the board. The heart finesse was, of course, lucky and he also was fortunate to find the diamond ace in front of the queen an entry for proper manipulation of the spade suit. Nevertheless, declarer's handling of the spade situation and his eventual throw-in play on West deserved full credit.

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

Planting of dormant stock is about finished in the South but has just gotten in full swing in colder parts of the country. The tyro gardener is usually the last person to plant dormant stock and, because of the late date he must do a perfect planting job. Guaranteed results can, however, be brought about by careful observance of a few essentials.

As soon as the dormant stock is received from the nursery the bundles should be opened, the roots soaked in cold water and the plants then heeled up in moist ground. While thus heeled up the bare roots are buried in a trench so that they do not dry out. Contact of these bare roots with the air would cause them to shrivel in a short time. With this done, time is allowed for preparing holes for the permanent planting.

With planting locations determined, work can proceed on the digging. Holes should be made large enough to receive the roots freely without cramping them; this allows growth to continue as it started in the nursery row. The depth of the holes should be sufficient to allow planting several inches deeper than the plants formerly stood. Small holes handicap well started plants, cut off all mulched or broken roots, stand the dormant plants in their permanent locations and pack the soil very firmly around the roots. Do this by tamping with the feet. Return the soil to within three inches of the original level, fill the holes with water and, after that has drained away, fill in the remaining three inches with well sifted or broken up soil—not to be tamped—to act as mulches. These mulch layers can contain one-half rotten manure; this will save later fertilizing. (Copyright, 1939)

FORMAL DRESSING SUNDAY

Dear Mrs. Post: A discussion has come up about the propriety of wearing formal evening clothes on a Sunday evening. Someone explained that it was perfectly proper to wear most formal evening clothes on Sunday evenings just as on any other evening, and the only reason for not seeing them was that there were few parties given on Sunday evening that would warrant wearing formal clothes. Will you agree with this, or give your reasons for saying otherwise?

Answer: I do agree with this. If a formal dinner or other formal entertainment were given, men would wear tails and women formal evening dress.

A Wedding Dress

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me what material would be most suitable for my wedding dress? I'd like the dress to be only floor length and to wear a shorter veil and I thought perhaps some material would be best for this. I don't care very much for tulle because it is not becoming.

Answer: Soft clinging satin or chiffon should be long. For a trainless skirt starched lace or any other stiffened material that stands away from your body would look best. All these crisp looking materials are especially pretty on a young bride.

An Expression of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you kindly discuss a slight variation of the thank you note problem? For example: I have had a business associate of my husband's for dinner. He now sends me flowers with his card enclosed. My first instinct has been to thank him immediately, but a friend who is with me at the moment thinks if I write a note thanking him it will defeat his purpose of thanking me. This is the first time I have run into this particular situation although I have had week-end guests come and send presents for the children.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Legion are the women of advanced years, who despair with complicated beauty programs. They don't want to be bothered with a detailed skin treatment and a simple routine appeals to them. They want to purchase a few reliable beauty aids to which they might remain faithful, comfortable in the knowledge that their skin is getting the care it actually needs to keep fresh and soft.

As the majority of older women have a dry-skin problem with which to combat, it is therefore necessary to add a lubricating cream to the necessary cleansing cream or lotion. And as wrinkles are also apt to be annoying, the third beauty aid required is an oil which may be left on overnight. With these such aids at hand a woman may give her skin satisfactory morning and night care.

At Night

Cleanse your face and throat thoroughly with the cleansing cream—a light, fluffy whipped cream is particularly good for aging skins. Remove it all with a soft linen towel which has been wrung out in warm water. (The older the towel the more soft and absorbing it is.) Then apply the special lubricating cream for dry skin and massage it gently but thoroughly into the skin and all over the face. It is surprising how quickly it will disappear!

In the Morning

Again dampen a soft linen towel with warm water and remove any film which the cream may have left on your skin. Dry your skin and smooth on a bit of the fluffy cleansing cream. A light film of this cream serves a very adequate powder base, and if you do not use face powder it leaves a nice fresh finish to your skin.

Wrinkle Oil Once in a While

If you wish to keep your skin as free of wrinkles as possible, you will find a rich stimulant oil used two or three times a week a great help to you. The particular oil I have in mind is heated slightly before application, and is put on the skin after it has been thoroughly cleansed with the fluffy cleansing cream. A special dab is placed over wrinkles and then you should work it into the skin with your fingertips. It is surprising how quickly it will disappear!

Only three cosmetic aids are necessary to keep face and throat skin soft-textured. Older women delight in them.

Over the oil you pat on the lubricating cream as usual, and leave both oil and cream on over night.

Some women like to tie up their chin in a supporter after such a treatment, and that does help to keep chin muscles firm.

If you have no favorite cosmetics which serve you loyally, clip and save this column and write me. I shall suggest three preparations which you may use as directed above. All come from a most reliable cosmetic firm and are priced moderately. Do enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a three-cent stamp for my reply. (Copyright, 1939)

Divorces May be Diminished By Extension of Time Limit

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I have been reading of a plan that is now being considered in Ohio in amending their divorce laws so as to institute a cooling-off period between the hearing of a divorce suit and the final granting of a decree. The idea is that no divorce case can be heard until four months after the filing of the petition. Then an additional three or four months will be provided for reconciliation and reflection before issuance of the decree. Such a law would have saved me from breaking up my home and wrecking my life, for in the heat of anger I divorced my husband for a cause that seemed very foolish and inadequate when I thought it over in the days of my bitter repentance. What is your opinion on the subject?

DIVORCEE.

Answer: I do not think that any wiser law could be passed, nor one that would do more to save fools from their folly or protect innocent children from being half-orphaned and made homeless by their parents. Time is the great healer, the great adjuster, the great clarifier of our vision in marriage as in all else in life. There are so many things we do in haste that we repent in leisure.

Of course, there are cases where husbands and wives do sin unforgivably against each other. Situations do develop in some marriages that are like a cancer that only the surgeon's knife of divorce can cure. But at least nine-tenths of the men and women who get divorced do it in the heat of anger or boredom and are sorry for it afterward.

For they find that divorce doesn't perform the miracles they expected it to work. It does not automatically make them gay, light-hearted boys and girls again. It doesn't solve any of their problems of living. It only adds to them. If they marry again they find that they have only exchanged one set of faults and peculiarities in a wife or husband for another. Gladys is no easier to get along with than Mary and Percival is just as aggravating in his ways as Tom was. They find that they merely added to their former troubles the mess of scandal, divorce and alimony, homelessness and dissatisfied children, and that their first estate is worse than their first.

When a woman finds out that her husband is philandering around with other women she sees red. Her heart is hurt. Her vanity is stabbed to the quick. Her dignity is outraged. And, maddened by her sufferings, she grabs up her children and slams the door of her home behind her and goes back to Mother. She will not live with such a brute.

But when she gets back to Mother she finds a chilly welcome. Father and Mother "poor Mary" her, but they are not keen about having a divorced daughter and her kids dumped on them. Nor are the old friends overly cordial. And by and by the woman who had thought divorce was going to end all of her troubles begins to realize that she has jumped out of the frying pan into the fire.

She reflects that even if John had a roving eye he had a generous hand, and that a little grudgingly paid alimony isn't as good as having a charge account at the best stores; that with all his faults he was a lot easier to live with than Mother. And by the time she has mulled over these home truths for a few months she would be glad enough to go back to John if she could.

A man gets tired of domesticity. He craves freedom. His wife bores him to tears. Everything she does and says irritates him and they quarrel incessantly. He breaks the bonds that tie him to her and his children.

But he finds that his liberty has turned to dust and ashes in his teeth. He misses home comforts, home food; even the noise of the children that used to infuriate him. Now that nobody cares whether he comes home or not there is no kick in staying out nights. He finds the women he thought so glamorous just as tiresome, just as nagging, just as possessive as his wife.

It is true that during the last 10 years we have had a surplus of routine workers, so that thousands of skilled men and women have been unemployed.

I say "routine workers," because these are people who are narrowly specialized so that they can do only one type of work, or else are too lazy or indolent to take on additional duties.

Communists are usually grandstanders who like to pass the buck and attack the so-called economic royalists. They are too lazy to pay the price exacted for success. It is easy to talk against those who have worked hard for 25 years to win a grubstake in this competitive age. But it requires maybe 20 years to wrest some wealth, or fame or legitimate success. If Eugene believes it takes friends and "pull" to win him a job, why hasn't he been developing friends?

Road to Success

Through the mail service which your editor makes available to all readers, I have offered free educational bulletins and sure-fire formulas for making friends.

But Eugene has never made the slightest attempt to avail himself of these aids. He is a sourd introvert who is beginning to feel that the world is against him. He is a twin for the one-talent man whom Christ mentioned in his parable of the communist versus the capitalist.

The government has offered men work through the WPA and at CCC camps. If he feels that it is beneath his dignity to procure anything but a white collar job, then who is to blame for his present lack of employment?

And why doesn't he use a little ingenuity and vary his panhandling methods of seeking employment? Too many people blindly tramp around from factory to factory or office to office, begging work with some such phrase as "Mister, can you spare a job?"

Don't Beg for Jobs

The proper way to get work is not to beg, but to develop some

But, since she came without escort, were not guards or thieves equally inconceivable? Why hadn't she thought of that before? They would never allow her to take papers found near the plane, without proper authority.

She turned to her driver. "Remember how we drove this evening, over the desert? Turn on your lights, and go towards the plane. Seem to see the guards."

In A letter from Dorothy Farm, these words appear:

"Will you send me the names of the Seven Wonders of the World?"

I am glad to do more than that. I am sending Dorothy a leaflet telling about the "Seven Wonders of the World do not all agree, but here is one: I think rather good:

The pyramids of Egypt, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, the Colossus of Rhodes, the Lighthouse of Alexandria, the Temple of Artemis, the Tomb of Mausolus and the Great Wall of China.

Quite often in the lists, the Statue of Zeus at Olympia is included instead of the Great Wall of China. To my mind, however, the China To my mind, however, the Statue of Zeus is a greater wonder.

Here are a few paragraphs from the leaflet issued for readers of this column:

"The Colossus of Rhodes, as it is commonly known, was a statue of the sun-god Apollo which was reared to mark the defeat of enemies who tried to capture the seaport city of the Greek colonists.

"An earthquake shook the statue down, and for centuries it was on the ground; but even as it lay there, a fallen giant, it was the wonder of all who came to the island.

"Among the visitors was Pliny, the famed Roman writer, who said:

"This giant statue was once standing at Rhodes. It was the work of Chares, and was no less than 70 cubits (105 feet) high. It was thrown down by an earthquake. Few men can clasp the thumb in their arms. Where the legs are broken, great holes are to be seen. Inside are heavy rocks which Chares used to steady the statue while he was setting it up."

"Ancient folk spoke of the Colossus of Rhodes as one of the Seven Wonders of the World. It stood for only 32 years before being cast to the ground by the quake. After lying on the ground for almost nine centuries, it was sold to a junk dealer. No one knows what happened to the pieces, but they probably were melted down for other uses."

Besides telling about other ancient wonders, the leaflet lists Seven Wonders of Nature, and Seven Modern Wonders. I you would like a copy of the leaflet, write to me and ask for "Seven Wonders of the World." There is no charge for it, but you should enclose with your letter a stamped envelope carefully addressed to yourself.

Remember this is only a small leaflet containing four illustrations. It probably is worth writing for only if you have special use for it in your school work.

ed. I had heard so many actresses make similar grandiose declarations that I took time out to snicker up my sleeve.

It seems I was too hasty. A few days ago Loretta calmly walked out on a job at Columbia—a job that would have paid her a neat $100,000 for starring in one picture! Cary Grant, whom she wanted to play opposite her, declined the part because he didn't like the story treatment. The studio refused to make the changes he demanded, and Loretta said nothing doing without Mr.

Grant. I happen to know that at the time she flouted that $100,000, she didn't have another assignment in view.

Not only does it take a Spartan spirit to reject that much money. But it takes intestinal fortitude for a player, just now, to risk a studio quarrel. The producers are at last determined on retaliatory meaures. At least a dozen stars who have refused roles after contracting to play them have been suspended. A freelance, of course, needn't worry about that, but even a freelance

Coolerator Real Help in Solving Cold Air Problem

Lutz Explains Operation Of Famous Ice Refrigerator

Producing cold, washed humidified, circulating air in refrigeration, was a problem not entirely solved until Coolerator was invented and placed on the market, according to the Lutz Ice Company, Coolerator retailers.

As a result, air in the food chamber of this patented refrigerator is constantly washed, purified, and is circulated several times each minute, maintaining in addition, the necessary steady, constant, cold temperature. No dangerous chemicals are present to cause worry or trouble, and no intricate machinery is in its construction that may break down just when refrigeration protection may be needed most.

Instead of having a makeshift arrangement of some type or a gadget on one small corner of the food chamber to keep foods and vegetables fresh, the whole food chamber of the Coolerator, the Lutz firm explains, is provided with the kind of cold, humidified air that will never rob them of their natural juices and flavor. Because of this steady, continuous circulation of air what excess food odors such as cheese, onions, etc. which might taint milk and butter are constantly removed so there is much less danger of fainting.

In addition to these many advantages the big, outstanding argument for Coolerator from original cost through all of the years of its service is, of course, economy. You will be surprised if you are not already acquainted with

Sears Presents Streamlines in Newest Bicycle

Radically New Construction Is Stronger by Actual Test

Utilizing a streamlining technique as revolutionary as that which captured the automobile industry, Sears, Roebuck and Company has introduced a continuous tube streamlined bicycle. A large shipment of the new bicycles has just been received by the local store according to Manager C. T. Peck. Developed by Sears merchandise development division in conjunction with its manufacturing source, the new bike is built on an entirely new construction principle which not only increases the utility but also adds to the beauty of this two-wheeled vehicle.

In place of the conventional frame of triangular shape construction with as many as eight different bars or metal tubes fastened together in 22 joints, the new Sears bicycle employs a frame which is roughly a parallelogram composed of only two continuous parallel bars moulded and bent to this shape.

Before putting the new bicycle on the market, Sears' testing laboratories subjected it to a series of rigid tests one with actual riders averaging 150 pounds in weight together with a 60-pound weight suspended from the top horizontal bar. Although it was ridden 13,000 miles over every type of road, the test bike showed absolutely no strain. Another test was made with the "rock crusher," the standard testing apparatus for bicycles used throughout the country. Although 50 hours on this machine which involves a series of varied stresses and strains and rough treatment, usually breaks down the average bicycle, the new streamliner withstood the ordeal for approximately 80 hours without a break.

ANDY DEVINE RIDES NEW SEARS' BIKE

DANGEROUS SERVICE

suddenly, and bear away in a circle, fast, back to the road. They will probably chase you. Will you do that? It will give me a chance to get what I want. I'll reach you farther down the road. Drive right away, with headlights. Creep back as near as you dare, without them."

"I understand, Mademoiselle."

"I'll stand on the step, and jump off." She opened the door, stood on the running board. The headlights snapped full on. The engine started. Clinging to the door, as the car rocked and plunged across the uneven ground, Petronella rode. All they were within a hundred yards of the aeroplane. Then she dropped off, fell into soft sand. Her heart was hammering. She picked herself up, and ran, crouched and floundering towards the plane. As she had hoped, the guards looked only at the car, approaching at the direct angle. They stood, blinded by the headlights, waiting for it. They were Egyptians, she noticed vaguely.

Murderers
As the car swerved and bore away, raised their arms, yelled, and ran after it. Petrel stopped abruptly, within a few yards of the tragically smashed machine, which she had seen in the sky such a short time ago. She stared, lying on the ground, near the stolidly munching camels, were two figures in uniform. One was sagged, and tied with rope. His dark eyes rolled sideways at her, caught the light of the moon. The other was neither bound, nor sagged. He lay, with a knife buried to its hilt in the stained jacket covering his back. It was a sight which terrified all thought of her task from her mind. She almost turned and ran for the road. But anger preserved her purpose for her. This was what Tony had sent Peter to find!

She looked after the murderers. They were still pursuing Hassan who was driving, slower than she liked, to encourage them. Even as she realized it, she heard two shots crack through the night.

She turned. There were only three boulders, thank heaven, anywhere near the plane. Instinct guided her. There could be no other explanation, she thought, with that part of her mind which was sick and hysterical with terror for the cool, matter of fact way the other part of her brain was functioning. The plane had buried its nose and somersaulted. There was the door to the reversed cockpit. It was swinging open. Scattered on the ground were cushions, instruments, maps. She had interrupted a search of the wreckage. Rene could have crawled out. There! To that round head of rock. The others were too far away for a seriously injured man to reach them. Down on her hands and knees, she buried desperate hands in the sand. She sought, the sand was loose. Her heart leapt, in amaxed triumph. She had them! She pulled out the small, black, macintosh case for whose contents one, perhaps two men had died.

Standing, she kicked back the sand with her foot. A rifle lay at a little distance from the dead guard. She picked it up. She looked towards the lights of the car. She needed its refuge desperately. She ran, at an angle, towards the road. Hassan would be gone, unless she could reach him. A shot! She dropped flat. But they were not firing at her. Near the road she saw the car, headlights still burning, come to a slow standstill. Hassan was dead or wounded! But she was within two hundred yards. If only she could reach it, Petrel crouched, planning her own salvation. The car was her only hope. She must distract the two Egyptians, from dragging Hassan out, make them fear back to the plane. Pointing the heavy rifle skywards, she fired.

She heard shouts! Hassan's enemies turned, and ran back towards the plane. They passed so close to her, crouched behind a
